Santa Claus, Band And Free Hot Dogs

Will be Features of Saturday Afternoon Exercises on Lower Broadway—Children Will Sing, Accompanied by Band Before Refreshments Are Distributed.

Next Saturday, December 17, at 2:30 o'clock, the Downtown Business Men's Association will sponsor another gala time for the benefit of the kiddies. Santa will be at the Community Christmas Tree with his book and pencil taking orders for toys and presents but he will not be the sole attraction for Malsenbelder's Citizens' Band will also be present to play for the children, who will receive gifts from the merchants.

Harry Malsenbelder will conduct the orchestra while the musicians render Christmas songs and hymns that all the children are familiar with and the kiddies, under the leadership of George A. Webster, conductor of music in the public schools, will sing. Every little boy and girl in Kingston and the surrounding communities is extended a cordial invitation to attend the event as the guest of the downtown merchants.

It will be a regular party and the gift to each child participating in the function will be a "sizzling hot-dog". Each little boy and girl will be given a ticket which entitles them to a "hot-dog" and it is expected that they will enjoy them as well as they did the candy that was handed out on last Saturday.

The "candy" will be handed out from a special kitchen which will be in the vicinity of Mill street and this will enable everyone to secure one of Fort's Famous Frankfurters in a roll from Mrs. Salzmans' bakery without disturbing traffic regulations.

The Downtown Business Men's Association has been promised adequate police protection for the special occasion in order to make conditions safe for every child.

Santa may be interviewed every afternoon and evening on the downtown streets and he has a pad and pencil listing the needs of every boy and girl who approaches him. He is also inviting the children to visit the big Community Christmas Tree on next Saturday and advising them to clear their throats and sharpen their appetites in order that they may sing, well and enjoy the "hot-dogs".

Smith Warned Not To Accept Seat

Left Vacant By The Late Senator McKinley of Illinois If Tendered Him—Action Might Force Special Session of Senate.

Washington, Dec. 15 (AP).—Senate Republican leaders today warned Frank L. Smith, senator-elect from Illinois, not to accept the appointment to fill the seat left vacant by the late Senator McKinley of Illinois, if it were tendered him.

A resolution, introduced by Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, already is pending in the Senate which would disavow Smith as a senator-elect. Other Democrats have declared they would resist his assumption of office because of disclosures brought out by the Senate Campaign Fund Investigating Committee, which inquired into the Illinois primaries.

Republican leaders have expressed the hope that nothing should be done in appointing a successor to Senator McKinley which would plunge the Senate into a long fight over the campaign funds issue, while important legislation is waiting.

Senator Watson, Republican of Indiana, a personal friend of Smith, urged him today by long distance telephone, not to accept the seat, on the grounds that such action might force a special session of the Senate.

The action was prompted by reports that Smith is determined to accept the appointment—if ordered—in order to present his side of the story of campaign expenditures.

Republican leaders are prepared, however, to move for an immediate vote on the seating of Smith if he is appointed, in an effort to forestall a long fight on the question. They are not hopeful that he would be seated if a vote should be taken immediately.

Arrest Wife in Bishop Murder

Officials After Week's Investigation Charge Mrs. Edith M. Bishop Murdered Her Husband, Luther Bishop, State Detective.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Dec. 15 (AP).—Mrs. Edith M. Bishop, wife of Luther Bishop, state detective, who was shot to death as he slept in his home here December 6, was held in jail here today on a charge of murder.

Mrs. Bishop was arrested yesterday after a week of investigation by state officials and after scores of men with criminal records had been questioned on the theory that underworld enemies of Bishop had shot him to death because of his unusual success in breaking up bandit gangs. She was first detained at the county jail the day after the shooting, but was released without charges being filed.

Bishop, known as a "two-gun" officer, who gained fame through the southwest for his work during the O'Casey Indian country "reign of terror," in which several wealthy Indians were killed, was known to have many enemies among men who had served prison sentences largely as a result of evidence he secured.

Authorities turned from the theory that gangsters had slain him when his two pistols were found in a closet near the bedroom where the shooting occurred. Mrs. Bishop declared she knew little about the killing, except that she was sleeping in a bed near her husband's when she was awakened by a shot. The shooting, she said, as she fled to summon aid.

Rush Work on Reade's Theatre

Two Shifts of Workmen Are Busy in Order to Complete the Job on Christmas. When Vanderville Will Be Staged.

Work in Reade's Kingston Theatre is being rushed in order that the theatre may be open by Christmas. Frank S. Campbell, the general contractor in charge of the work, on Monday put two shifts of workmen at work to complete the job on time. Work was carried on throughout the night and today the theatre presents a changed appearance from Saturday night, when the theatre closed for two weeks. The dividing hall between the old portion and the new portion is removed and the floor has already been extended into the old portion. Practically overnight the appearance of the auditorium has been changed.

Various mechanics will continue to be busy during the two weeks the theatre is closed and Christmas when the appearance of an entirely new playhouse. The opening on Christmas will be with a special program and thereafter Vanderville and Stran pictures will be a feature.

Kosher Meat Case In Jury's Hands

Action of Swift and Company Against Abraham Miller Sent To Jury—Negligence Action Taken up for Trial.

The action brought by Swift & Company against Abraham Miller to recover for meats sold and delivered was completed in Supreme court this morning and sent to the jury shortly before noon. All testimony was in Tuesday afternoon when court adjourned and the summation and charge was given at the opening of court this morning.

Miller, who conducted a butcher shop at Ellenville, seeks through a counter claim to recover $5,000 damages for alleged loss of business which he contends was brought about when the Rabbi and his committee discovered tref meat in the Kosher butcher shop on two occasions.

Miller claims that the meat was shipped to him by Swift & Company after they had been notified that he wanted only kosher meats. He alleged that the first time the tref meat was discovered it was returned and the Rabbi warned him that a second time would mean that he would lose business of many large customers. Nine days later when a second shipment was received Miller was again visited by the Rabbi and although he alleges it was not his fault but that of Swift & Company he was fined by the Jewish congregation. His business dwindled after a meeting had been called in the Jewish Community Center at Ellenville and the Jews told of the finding of tref beef in the kosher shop of Miller.

John W. Eckert appears for Swift & Company and Judge William D. Cunningham for the defendant.

Negligence Action. At the conclusion of the meat case the negligence action brought by Nollie B. Van Wagner of Mt. Tremper against Carl Schentzen was taken up for trial. This action grows out of the collision of the Van Wagner car and that of the defendant at the Cold Brook intersection of the station road and the Kingston-Phoenicia highway. Mr. Van Wagner was injured. His car was proceeding from the Cold Brook station across the bridge and into the main highway when the Schentzen car, a large foreign vehicle, in charge of a chauffeur south bound struck the small car of Van Wagner.

The action was once before tried and resulted in a disagreement of the jury. August Shufeldt, John G. Van Etten and Andrew J. Cook appear for Mr. Van Wagner and District Attorney Traver, Cleon B. Murray and Frank T. Murray appear for the defendant.

Haugen Silent on New Farm Bill

Washington, Dec. 15 (AP).—The famous farm relief partnership of McNary and Haugen appeared today to be in the course of dissolution as the fight over the agricultural problem waxed warmer in congress.

Failure of senate farm leaders to ask Chairman Haugen of the house agricultural committee, to introduce the McNary Bill which was offered yesterday in the senate, gave color to the story told by Mr. Haugen's associates that he objects to elimination of certain tariff provisions which were a part of the old McNary-Haugen surplus control measure. Mr. Haugen remains silent on the new proposal.

Meanwhile Representative Purnell, Republican, Indiana, and Fulmer, Democrat, South Carolina, who were requested by senate leaders to introduce the new McNary bill in the house, are undecided as to their course, and have indicated they would make no move until Chairman Haugen has expressed himself.

Ormiston Sick, Delays Surrender

Fugitive Radio Man in McPherson Case While Agreeing to Surrender Announces He Will Fight Efforts to Remove Him to Los Angeles.

Chicago, Dec. 13 (AP).—Another complication in the efforts of Los Angeles authorities to arrest Kenneth Ormiston, fugitive radio man in the Albee Temple McPherson case, appeared today in an announcement that Ormiston would prevent Ormiston's immediate surrender in answer to papers sent from California.

Attorney E. H. Martin had told Chicago officials that his client would surrender when they received certified copies of the Los Angeles warrants, but today the lawyer announced that Ormiston had been afflicted with a severe cold and would not give himself up until he felt better. Martin said physicians had ordered Ormiston to remain in bed for at least another day.

On the basis of the warrants received here the state's attorney's office prepared a complaint to obtain a fugitive warrant in municipal court today, as the opening move in extradition proceedings. While agreeing to surrender, Ormiston served notice that he would fight efforts to remove him to Los Angeles.

Woman Killed in Fall. Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 15 (AP).—A woman about sixty years of age, severely injured, was fatally injured when she either leaped or fell from a sixth story window in the Onondaga Hotel here today. The window opened on an inside court. Early attempts to identify her were unsuccessful.

December Jury Praises Work of County Officials

December Grand Jury Finds County Jail in Good Condition—Recommends Improvements to Grand Jury Room—Additional Room Needed.

The following resolution adopted by the members of the December grand jury was filed with the court Tuesday afternoon when the grand jury handed up its report:

"We, members of the Ulster County Grand Jury in attendance at this December, 1926, term of the Supreme court, having completed our duties, desire at this time to put on record our appreciation of the courteous treatment which has been extended us by the various county officials whom we have come in contact with during our sessions.

During our sessions several matters have been called to our attention and these matters have been speedily attended to. The results of our deliberations will be more fully learned from the report which we now hand up to the court. In all of our sessions our work has been greatly expedited through the able and capable conduct of our body by District Attorney Frederick G. Traver and his assistant, Cleon B. Murray, assistant district attorney. By careful preparation of matters to be presented before our body, through able examination of the several witnesses sworn before us and by their knowledge of the law it has been possible, with their able assistance, to transact a very considerable amount of work in a comparatively short time. Through this assistance our sessions have been shortened, the work has been accomplished without undue cost to the taxpayers and the ends of justice have been speedily met. We desire to extend our thanks and appreciation to Mr. Traver and his assistant, Mr. Murray. Also to our stenographer, William P. Glass, who has demonstrated his ability, we desire to extend our thanks.

In examining the witness sworn before our body the county officials have at all times extended courtesy and consideration and the examination has been conducted in a fair, able and impartial manner with but one end, justice, in view. To the court officials we also extend our thanks for their numerous courtesies.

Jail in Good Condition. We have examined the county jail and county property in the custody of Sheriff Wells. The jail we have found in good condition, the prisoners under the sheriff's care apparently well cared for. We commend the sheriff and his assistants for the excellent care which they have given the county property entrusted to them.

Grand Jury Room Needs Repairs. We would recommend however that certain minor matters in regard to the grand jury room be attended to by the county board of supervisors, or their committee which has such matters in charge. The grand jury room walls are in need of attention and we would recommend that the grand jury room be re-painted and re-decorated; also that additional room be provided for witnesses awaiting appearance before the grand jury. The room now provided is inadequate and we suggest that an additional room be provided or the present one extended or enlarged. The stairway leading to the grand jury rooms is also in need of repairs of a minor nature."

Dated, December 14, 1926. Signed: J. WELLS WEAVER, Foreman. W. I. VANDEMARK, Clerk.

CHARGE "TEA TASTER" ROBBED $2,200 IN JEWELS. New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—A man who claims to be a professional tea taster, but who is accused by police of having attempted to rob Queen Marie of royal Rumanian jewels, was arrested here early today for the robbery of nearly $2,200 in jewels from Samuel Frothingham.

The man gave his name as John Alderson and his age as 27. Apparently he is well educated, and police describe him as a typical "gentleman burglar." He was arrested as he was leaving the apartment of the uptown building in the fashionable section of the east side, where Frothingham has an apartment on the ground floor.

Police lost a $1,500 bracelet, set with 54 diamonds a diamond ring, a gold cigarette case, gold watch chain and gold bar pin as having been recovered from him. They claim he has a police record in England as well as in this country.

PREBTERIAN CHURCH. At a meeting of members of the North River Presbyterian working in the $15,000,000 fund drive of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, held at Fourteenth Street, it was reported that there had been $22,334 so far collected in the Presbyterian of the North River, above quota of $24,000.

Relief Promised From Cold Wave

Further Advance in Temperature Thursday Promised by Weather Forecasters—Cold Weather Continues in Northwest.

Chicago, Dec. 15 (AP).—A slight reaction today from the widespread cold wave, and a further advance in temperature Thursday has been promised by weather forecasters, but with the unheating postscript that even with moderation the mercury will be considerably below normal for the season.

The front of the cold wave, which swirled down from Alaska and moved rapidly across the country, has reached the north Atlantic states and the south, but in a modified form, although temperature drops of twenty to thirty degrees were not unusual in those areas.

The cold has continued, however, with marked severity in the northwest, where temperature last night ranged from ten to twenty degrees below zero over a wide area. Western Canada likewise continued in the grip of one of the most sustained cold spells in many years, with the mercury sinking to 35 degrees below in some places.

A sixty-mile gale which blew snow and mist from the freezing regions of Thunder Bay held 15 to 20 grain laden steamers at anchor within seven miles of Port Arthur, Ont. The Lake Shippers' Clearance Association said no further clearance of vessels would take place this season from that port.

Probably a score of persons died as a result of the cold, and much damage was done to power and telephone lines by ice and sleet, while motor and train traffic was held up by heavy snow in some areas. Most of the damage had been repaired today in the Minnesota and Wisconsin areas, and snow filled highways were being opened to traffic.

Trouble Ahead For World. While most of the country shivered and read weather bulletins, scientists at Washington added a note of possible earth disturbance in 1927 from sun spots.

Although there is no definite evidence that sun spots affect the weather, disturbance of the magnetic needle are violent on earth during the period when the spots are most numerous, and it is reasonably certain that brilliant displays of the aurora borealis are directly connected with their presence. Telegraph wires are heavy sufferers from the northern lights.

Naval observatory officials said sun spots were increasing and that trouble was ahead for the world.

Lyman Perrine Drowns in Creek

Body Found Floating in Rondout Creek Off Old Abby Dock Tuesday Evening—Had Been Ill During Day, and Fell From Scow He Was Operating.

Lyman Perrine, who for a number of years has operated a passenger scow between the lower section of the city and Sloatsburg on the Rondout creek, was found drowned in the creek early Tuesday evening. That afternoon he had informed several men that he had not been feeling well and it is believed that he was seized with a fainting spell while operating the scow across the creek and fell overboard.

The scow was seen drifting in the creek early that evening and the fact was reported to police headquarters and Sergeant Phinney made arrangements to have men grapple for the body, but before they began work deckhands in the employ of the Central Hudson Light saw the body floating opposite the old Abby dock. It was removed from the water and placed on the shore at Sloatsburg and Colonel W. Norman Conner notified who turned the body over to Undertaker Ernest A. Kelly.

Mr. Perrine, who was 51 years old, resided in the old boathouse at Sloatsburg and for many years had operated a scow back and forth across the creek. When the Sloatsburg was running, and before the Rondout Creek Bridge was erected Mr. Perrine operated the scow after the ferry had made its last trip of the night for the convenience of those desiring to cross the creek. After the ferry was taken off the route and junked he continued to operate the scow for the convenience of those living in Sloatsburg.

During the many years that he operated the scow Mr. Perrine became widely known.

Kingston Post Christmas Cheer

Local Post of American Legion and Auxiliary Will Take Care of 290 Orphans—Will Take Care of Families of Ex-service Men.

The Christmas spirit of "Peace on earth, good will toward men" will radiate this year in concrete form from the American Legion Memorial Building. Mr. Leudtke and Mrs. McManus, chairman of the Welfare Committee of the Legion and Auxiliary, respectively, have arranged an interesting and thoughtful program for spreading good cheer.

The Legion has a large stock of toys, clothing, candy, fruit, and other good things that gladden the heart at Christmas, and these Santa Claus will distribute for them to 230 orphans in this vicinity. They will visit the Industrial Home, the Convent of St. Ann, both in this city, the children that may be patients at the Kingston City and Benedictine Hospitals, and the old people at the City Home and the Home for the Aged. The children at the Sacred Heart Orphanage at West Park will also be provided for.

There are some disabled Kingston boys at the Chelsea Hospital, which is a hospital maintained by the U. S. Veterans Bureau at Castle Point. At this hospital also are thirteen nurses who were wounded in overseas service. They will not be forgotten by the local Legion post during the Christmas holiday.

If anyone knows of any ex-service man or any one whose family will not be fully taken care of by Santa this year, they are requested to communicate with Edward J. Leudtke, 72 West Pierpont street.

Suicidal Plunge Reunites Couple

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—A taxicab driver and his wife, separated for five years, were reunited today through the suicidal leap of an unidentified woman whom he at first had believed was his wife.

The woman plunged to death yesterday afternoon from the Riverside Drive viaduct, falling almost at the feet of the taxi driver, Joseph Kipchak, who had his stand near the Fort Lee ferry.

When her face was turned upward, Kipchak identified her as his wife, Margaret, and collapsed.

He ordered the body removed to an undertaking establishment and gave orders for a funeral. He then went to tell friends and relatives of the tragedy, but was informed he must be mistaken as his wife was said to be living in Yonkers.

He went to the address given, found his wife and remorse caused him to jump to the viaduct. The couple went to police headquarters, where Kipchak told of the mistaken identity. The funeral plans were cancelled and police ordered the removal of the body to the city morgue. Identities were assigned to trace her identity.

George Talks of Chinese Affairs

In His Speech Which Protruded Parliament For the Holidays—Also Touches on Imperial Conference and the Coal Strike.

London, Dec. 15 (AP).—Parliament was prorogued today for the holidays, to reassemble February 3.

In his speech of prorogation, King George touched on the situation in China, the recent imperial conference, the coal strike, and the forthcoming visit of the Duke and Duchess of York to Australia to inaugurate the new federal capital, Canberra.

The Chinese situation is "being watched by the government with the closest attention," the king said, adding: "Our country is animated by strong sympathy for that vast majority of the Chinese people whose aspirations are for settled conditions, a new era of prosperity, and friendly relations with the foreign powers."

For the first time in history the king departed from the formula whereby British monarchs have referred to the cabinet as "my ministers." He spoke of "my ministers from the dominions," thereby further confirming the autonomous status of the various commonwealths as voiced by the recent imperial conference.

Regarding home affairs he said: "During the greater part of the present year the nation has lived in the shadow of the most protracted and ruinous industrial conflict in its history (the coal strike). When last addressing you, I expressed earnest hope that the report of the commissioners upon the economic condition of the coal industry would, with the willing cooperation of all concerned, pave the way to a peaceful solution of this great social and economic problem."

"This hope was not fulfilled. It remains to us now to unite in effecting all the bitter memories of the past and to set our eyes steadfastly upon the future, inspired by a common impulse toward genuine fellowship and sustained endeavor, upon which alone the prosperity and happiness of my people can be firmly based."

Crew Quits Ship, Mutiny Reported

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 15 (AP).—An eight man crew reported in mutiny yesterday aboard the grounded schooner Charles A. Dean, was in the custody of the coast guard today while authorities sought to establish a basis for reports that a mad man was in irons aboard the vessel.

A coast guard life boat from the Oak Island station pulled alongside the schooner late last night and three white men and five negroes quit the ship without resistance. Captain A. W. Albert remained aboard.

The Charles A. Dean, a four masted ship out of Savannah for Baltimore with a cargo of cross ties, went aground off Frying Pan Shoals, five miles off the North Carolina coast, Monday night. Yesterday morning a coast guard crew from the Oak Island station went to her assistance.

The guardsmen messaged to their base that when they came up alongside the disabled craft they looked down the barrel of a gun held by the captain and were curtly ordered to hold off. The captain had barricaded himself, the guardsmen reported, and apparently was trying to hold the ship against the crew.

Fore of the stern, where the captain held forth behind a formidable weapon, the messengers told of members of the crew hiding behind barrels, rigging and sandwiched between hatchways as evidence of their opposition.

Being unarmed the guardsmen returned to their base to obtain "necessary weapons" and arranged to have the Modoc, a fast formidable cutter, slip out to the schooner and the disarmament. When the vessel finally was boarded, the captain did not interfere, guardsmen reported, nor did he request that any charges be placed against the crew.

After a canvass of his sources of information, he has concluded that the smugglers aren't doing much to cheer up the bootleggers and their clients, and that the icy blasts which are sweeping out from the northern shore are chilling the blood only of innocent seafarers, for so trace of historic "Rum Run" is reported there.

Washington, Dec. 15 (AP).—Imperial liquor for Christmas will be scarce, if Lincoln C. Andrews, commander-in-chief of the government's prohibition forces, has been correct. He is informed, and furthermore, if he has his way, "under cover" enforcement agents will retain the only means of securing liquor recently denied by the House.

Says Liquor Will Be Scarce. The annual entertainment of 45,000 members of the Grand Old Opry at the Grand Old Opry House in Nashville, Tenn., will be given on the 11th evening at 8 o'clock.

Elections in Hungary gave Count Stephen Bethlen, Premier, a seven-eighths majority in Parliament and a control exercised by no other administration in Europe.

Great Writers Often

in Financial Straits

When Oliver Goldsmith was threatened with arrest for nonpayment of rent, Samuel Johnson hastened to him and asked if he had any manuscript upon which he might realize some money. Goldsmith produced his "Vicar of Wakefield," and Johnson, who, upon glancing through it, saw its merits, tucked it under his arm and hurried to Francis Newberry, that famous old bookseller. Newberry was rather indifferent about its worth, but paid Johnson the equivalent of $300 for it.

To Goldsmith, the sum was the price of liberty, as well as shelter and food, and he welcomed it as one would a small fortune. Newberry kept the manuscript for two years, until Goldsmith's "Traveler" having appeared and proved successful, he thought he might risk its publication. It was published March, 1760, and in a month was in its second edition.

Goldsmith, however, was not the only author who suffered from pecuniary straits. Dickens, Johnson, Thackeray, Addison and Swift were at various times so pressed for money that they did not know from where their next dollar was coming—Market for Exchange.

New Oil Source

If a process for the extraction of oil from coal, invented by Dr. Paul Drevkovitz, a Russian, proves as successful as he claims it to be, declares the Westminster Gazette, Great Britain will never have cause to fear a shortage of petrol. By his method of extraction, so it is said, 500 tons of coal will yield 2,000 gallons of motor spirits, 6,000 gallons of lamp oil, 3,000 gallons of lubricating oil, and varying amounts of paraffin, phenol, pitch, sulphate of ammonia, and sulphur. And after all these substances have been separated from the coal, asserts the inventor, there will be a residue of 374 tons of smokeless fuel, which will give greater heat than the original coal itself—Compressed Air Magazine.

Studying Mining Problems

The United States bureau of mines has 12 experiment stations throughout the country devoted to the study of mining problems. A staff of 300 men is engaged in scientific coal investigations, studying such problems as combustion, boiler furnaces, construction and origin, spontaneous combustion, inflammability of coal dust, briquetting, low-temperature distillation, testing and analyzing, gas producers and numerous mining problems.

LAST NIGHT on THE RADIO

Clear, but not very strong reception last night. WJZ again showed distortion up to 9:15 o'clock. WGY was clearer, but weak. WEAF had a lot of code interference.

Not until the Harmony Twins went on at WGY did that station show any pep. One of the selections by the Twins was "Mellie Sat on a Red Hot Stove and That Was Hot Tamale."

WBB, Kansas City, emerged for a few minutes from the welter of interfering stations. Before the wave jumpers buried it, WBB was often heard.

WJOD and WTAM had another fight for a place in the ears of the fans with WTAM winning the first round, only to be put down and out later by the Florida station.

Among the best were WGX, WWJ, KDKA, WOC, WCB, WBB, KFAB, WBS, WCCO, WLW, and WLC.

Fishing for WAAT was what brought in WEBQ Monday night, briefly referred to in this column. Tuesday, Fishing for WAAT has been one of the principal labors of Ye Listener, but WAAT refuses to let itself be heard by him, although it has 500 watts power, is less than 100 miles away and is heard by scores of fans in Kingston. While exploring the jungle of low wave lengths in the vain search for WAAT signs of life were heard, a squeal developed and from it WDAF emerged. This was no new or thrilling experience, so search was made for the other part of the squeal. About half a point higher the squeal of interference was passed and a station heard, but on such exact tuning that a movement of one-twentieth of a point on the dial put it out. This station was WEBQ. Har-

Negroes Fatally Wound Policeman

Chicago, Dec. 15 (AP).—One policeman was fatally wounded today by negro holdupmen, one of whom barricaded himself in a south side house where shotgun and rifle squads from the detectives rushed to besiege him.

Earlier another policeman was wounded by a pair of negroes, one of whom he captured.

Patrolman Julian Bonfield was shot by one of two negroes when he interrupted a holdup of the University Extension Conservatory and died shortly afterward.

The common cold, like the weather, is discussed a great deal but nothing is ever done about it.

J. O. U. A. M. WILL HOLD CLASS INITIATION FRIDAY

On Friday night, December 17, the council of Ulster county of the J. O. U. A. M. will hold a big class initiation at the rooms of the local council. It is expected to take in about 300 new members at that time. Music will be furnished by the J. O. U. A. M. band and orchestra of eight pieces. Several of the state officers will be present. A loving cup will be given to the council having the most candidates. Sausages Council No. 104, will work the first two degrees and the degree team of the local council the third. After the work a banquet will be served. All members of the J. O. U. A. M. are invited to be present.

Berry and Hyatt In New Location

Berry and Company, Inc., Investment Bankers, Underwriters and Distributors of high class bonds and securities with main office in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and branch offices in Kingston and Middletown, N. Y., have moved from the second floor of the Cordis building, 276 Fair street, where they have been located for the past three and one half years to a new suite of offices on the ground floor No. 281 Fair street, one door from John street, formerly the entrance to the Opera House.

Frank S. Hyatt, who has been resident manager for Berry and Company and for the past five years connected with the Ulster Realty Agency, will continue to manage the local office for Berry and Company and will continue for himself a general real estate and insurance business under the name "Frank S. Hyatt." Mr. Hyatt has discontinued his relations with the Ulster Realty Agency and is now in a position to give a complete real estate, insurance and investment service.

The new office is completely equipped with modern fixtures and is considered to be one of the finest offices in the City of Kingston.

Heart of Crocodiles

The delta of the Ganges river is cultivated. In the southern part of the delta bordering the sea is a dismal network of swamp land known as the Sunderbans. This swamp land is infested with crocodiles, tigers and other wild animals. Three distinct species of crocodiles are found in the Ganges—the fresh-water, long-snouted gharial; the man-eating koomah and the mug-gar.

Football, Paying Sport at Yale

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 15 (AP).—Football is the only major sport at Yale which shows a financial profit, and the great crowds that attended games in the Bowl turned into the Athletic Association's treasury practically enough money to make up the deficit of all the other sports. This is shown in the financial report of the association for the year ending June 30, 1926, issued today.

Football at Yale during the fall of 1925 showed a gross revenue of $740,876.01 and a net income of $355,968.73. The hockey team reported gross revenue of $18,191.55 and net income of $308.53.

The major sports, football, baseball, track and crew, showed gross revenue of $615,034.76 and net income of $244,807.40. The minor athletics reported gross revenue $38,335.92 and net deficit of $61,729.25. Both the major and minor athletics showed gross revenue of $853,389.71 and net revenue of $183,078.15.

Bell Charged With Larceny

Ralph Bell was arrested Tuesday by State Troopers Martin and Metcalf on a charge of larceny and brought to the Ulster county jail to be held to await a hearing in the town of Ulster later. Bell, it is alleged stole kits of wrenches from an automobile at East Kingston and sold them to a man in the downtown section of this city for $5. The booty was recovered.

Isadore Lancer Files Appeal

Isadore Lancer, through his attorney, Frank W. Brooks, has filed with the Ulster county clerk a notice of appeal to Appellate Division of the Supreme court, from the judgment of conviction rendered in county court in November convicting him of the crime of arson in the third degree, and particularly from the order overruling the demurrer to the indictment therein. Lancer was found guilty of setting on fire his building on the Saugerties road.

KINGSTON, N. Y., DEC. 15, 1926

Though the majority is supposed to rule in this country, it is true, as Clarence Darrow points out, that the population of one-third of the States "having less people than are in New York," can prevent any change in the Constitution.

It is announced that the divorce rate in New York is the lowest in the country. This needs to be interpreted in the light of the fact that New York's divorce law is very strict and that the divorces obtained by New Yorkers elsewhere are not counted.

It suggests a look into the "faded backward and abyss of time" to read in a "twenty-five years ago today" column that "society women and clubmen" of Baltimore organized a club for "Sunday strolls," the members contracting "to walk fifteen miles each Sunday." Where are such walkers now?

While the people of the North Atlantic States were shivering in premature near-zero weather the news came of a "terrific hot wave" in Argentina. Our winter is their summer, of course, but apparently this is a year of weather freakishness on both sides of the equator.

It seems that spats have "gone out" in London, the original home of the fashion. According to Tailor and Cutter, the London trade magazine, after a recent garden party at Buckingham Palace the shruberies were full of white spats hastily discarded by the Americans who no sooner arrived on the grounds than they discovered how lonely they looked in the ornamental shoe-tops they had believed to be de rigueur at such a function. Slipping into the bushes to snatch them, knowing that they were followed by many an amused eye, must have been a rather trying experience to social climbers lacking in courage to face the consequences of even a pardonable error.

TAX THE MOTOR CAR.

While ownership of automobiles has become so general that to many persons it makes little difference in what manner they pay their highway tax—by direct taxation or by automobile tax—the interests of justice demand that the automobile be adequately taxed. It never has been. This injustice is probably due to legislators being afraid of the howling derisives who seem to have most to say in shaping the action of various unions of automobile owners.

The situation would not be so bad had not other states been less fearful of the noise and empty threats of the professional automobile organization orators and levied a gasoline tax. The result of this failure is that thousands of automobiles from other states wear out the highways of New York state and contribute nothing toward making good the damage while every New York motorist begins to pay to other states the minute he buys a gallon of gas outside his own state. New York state motorists are contributing to the upkeep of the roads in other states, but New York receives no tax from those without the state who help to wear out its roads.

A gasoline tax imposed by New York state would remedy this and produce, from those whose demands are most insistent, greatly needed funds for the building and maintenance of roads. Furthermore, this means of imposing a tax would work exact justice in that the tax would increase or decrease according as the motorist increased or decreased his use of the roads. The taxpayer would pay according to the benefit received by him and the damage he was doing to the state's property. This proposition is so plain that it needs neither argument nor further explanation. Decent and honest automobile owners who have the power to think are supporting it, providing there is a decrease in the registration tax on motor vehicles.

That there should be such decrease is couched, but on the amount and method of computing the decrease the legislature was disinclined last session. For this there was no excuse. The cost of administering the law is the same for levying a $75 driver's license of 1917 or a $10,000 super car of the latest model. Therefore the registration tax should be the same. The gasoline tax would pre-vide for the inequalities, not only in the value of the car, but in the number of miles it was run. It is manifest that a car standing in a garage most of the time should not be taxed as much as the car that is seldom standing still. The car in the garage does not wear out roads. The car that is constantly on the go wears out roads. The car in the garage consumes no gasoline. The car that runs most of the time consumes much gasoline. Therefore, the gasoline tax is the fairest method for the taxation of automobiles and from it should be collected the greater part of the tax on automobiles.

And while they are at it, the legislators should remember that the automobile has never borne its just share of taxation, should put behind them the fear of denunciation by spokesmen for organized tax dodgers and impose a simple and adequate tax.

SLEEPING SICKNESS.

Less than ten years ago sleeping sickness was practically unknown. Today every part of the world reports cases, nearly one thousand in North America alone.

Just what causes it, where it gets its start, is at present unknown. Three or four years ago it was thought that it was in some way related to influenza, but it attacks just one or two individuals here and there, whereas influenza lays thousands low at one time.

Dr. Charles Hunter of Winnipeg, has collected much information on encephalitis lethargica as it is called.

He tells us that cases develop gradually with a dull headache, weakness and drowsiness, although some are stricken down suddenly with severe headaches, vomiting, fever and delirium, with pains in face, neck, or other parts, and frequently with double vision.

This drowsiness gradually gives place to sleepiness, the patient being practically asleep all the time, but when roused will answer "intelligently," but immediately sinks into deep slumber. This lasts for days, sometimes for weeks or months.

There are twitching movements or jerks which occur in certain groups of muscles. Sometimes the skin and hair are unusually sensitive. It is estimated that three out of four that are attacked recover but a considerable percentage have symptoms remaining that resemble spinal cord ailments.

Unfortunately the causative organism has never been discovered, and just how it is transmitted from one person to another has likewise not been determined. This makes it hard to take precautions to prevent the spreading.

However the treatment is on a fairly well established basis, which demands absolute rest in bed, even in mild cases.

The headache, the twitching, and the drowsiness are treated by the physician by the usual methods.

This new ailment is baffling at present, but fortunately it does not appear in epidemic form, and our research men are likely to discover its causation and thus its prevention before very long. The fact that it has been occurring in all parts of the world gives research men everywhere an opportunity to study it.

Baby Wasp's Feast

The wasp, whose nest frequently is found under the eaves of a building or behind the blinds, is an expert spider catcher. She selects a spider of proper size, poisons upon it, thrusts her stinger into the most vulnerable spot and paralyzes her victim, reducing it to a helpless state without killing it outright. The spider then is taken to the wasp's nest and placed on the under side, the cell is closed and apparently forgotten. Soon afterward the egg hatches and the infant wasp is provided with a supply of food.—St. Nicholas Magazine.

Walking on Water

It is possible to walk on water, or at least on the surface of Lake Haggard, Kenya colony, Africa, because of the thick crust of carbonate of soda, commonly known as baking soda, which covers the lake's surface. This lake, which is fifteen miles long and four miles wide, even at the height of summer has the appearance of being completely frozen over. The lake is impregnated by sodium carbonate, in the same way Great Salt Lake water is full of salt.

KEMP'S BALSAM

Today's Story in New York History

By Frederic A. Godcharles.

(Copyright, 1926, by the Author)

New Yorkers Enlist in the "Patrol War" in Canada, December 15, 1837.

In 1837 there took place two rebellions in Canada which concerned the citizens of the New York frontier, one in Upper or British, the other in Lower or French Canada.

These rebellions were simultaneous, but almost unconnected, and scarcely united in sympathy, since the British Protestants of the upper province were by no means fraternally linked with the French of the lower.

In Upper Canada the rebellion was a rising of a democratic party including many of the most recent colonies and some of the citizens of Northern New York, against the personal rule of the imperial governor and a desire for an independent republic or annexation to the United States.

Its leader was William Lloyd Mackenzie, a man honest and right in his main aim, if responsible government is right, but wanting in wisdom and capacity as a leader. In Lower Canada the rebellion was a rising of the French, the conquered race, against the power of the British, who demanded the assertion of French equality and right. Its leader was Joseph Papineau, an extensive land-owner, and very influential among the French inhabitants.

These movements were regarded as patriotic by the Americans, and the active sympathy of the New Yorkers along the northern frontier was evoked.

On December 15, 1837, nearly a thousand New York volunteers, with provisions and twenty pieces of artillery, seized Navy Island, in the Niagara River two miles above the Falls. There they were joined by Mackenzie, who was already a fugitive.

They employed a small steamboat named the "Caroline" as a ferry vessel between the New York shore and the island. On a dark night at the close of December, while persons on board her were asleep, a party of Canadian loyalists from Chippewa, seized her, killed some of her people, cut her loose, set her on fire, and allowed her to float blazing down the fearful rapids and over the mighty cataract into the seething gulf below.

Mackenzie, whose rashness imperiled the cause at the outset, fled to New York. The Governor of Canada made requisition upon Governor Marcy for his surrender, but Marcy declined to yield him up, as his crime was political, not criminal.

Meanwhile all along the New York frontier, from Cape Vincent to Rouse Point, at the foot of Lake Champlain, American sympathizers continued to cross into Canada and join the insurgents.

At Clayton, on the New York shore of the St. Lawrence, lived William Johnston, a bold British subject, who was appointed commodore of the naval force of the insurgents by their authority. He kept up an amphibious warfare among the Thousand Islands, while others on the Canadian shore kept the frontier in continual excitement for months.

At length President Van Buren issued a proclamation forbidding American citizens engaging in the insurrectionary movement. General Winfield Scott was sent to Northern New York to preserve order. Governor Marcy also issued a proclamation of the tenor of that of the President. The open contest soon ceased, but for some time secret associations on New York soil, called "Hunter's Lodges" kept up the excitement. These lodges numbered about twelve hundred. They were suppressed by President Tyler in 1842.

Both rebellions were quelled in 1838 without much bloodshed; that in Upper Canada by the loyal militia; that in Lower Canada by the Queen's troops.

There were few exceptions, but most of the leading insurgents were driven into exile.

There soon followed a general amnesty, with return of exiles, and William Lloyd Mackenzie sat in Parliament under the new regime.

Johnston was for a long time a fugitive, hiding among the islands and supplied with food by his charming daughter, a girl of eighteen years, who was expert in the management of a boat. He finally gave himself up to the American authorities. He was sentenced to one year's imprisonment, and confined in jail at Albany, where his daughter joined him to solace him in his solitude. They managed to escape and Johnston was un molested. He afterward became keeper of a lighthouse a few miles below Clayton.

Hair Reveals Engagement

A cutting done in the old Japanese style in the way in which girls of Japan announce their engagement and approaching marriage. Miss Occurrence Dancer of the Y. W. C. A. in Elton writes that no other announcement is necessary.

"When one of our Y girls suddenly comes in with her hair done a la old Japan, we know exactly what it means. A marriage has been arranged and her hair is being treated and groomed to stand out from her head in graceful curves for the great day a few weeks ahead."

"One of our bride-to-be, a nurse in a hospital here, had her partner as go-between in the engagement arrangements. She is, however, thoroughly modern and is going on with her schooling after her marriage."

"Much 'Gas' Lost in Gas"

According to a recent report of the American Research Foundation, sufficient gasoline is now being reclaimed from natural gas to keep 2,000,000 motor cars in operation. As this by-product of natural gas was formerly wasted, it may surprise many of us to learn that our natural-gas-gasoline output now exceeds 2,000,000 gallons a day—representing approximately 10 per cent of the total motor fuel production of the United States. These figures bring home to us what well-directed conservation or utilization of by-products can be counted upon to do.—Compressed Air Magazine.

"Woodpecker" in Russia

British newspaper have borrowed the Anglo-German word "woodpecker" to designate the type of brigandage at present overrunning the communist parades. Kromskaya Gorka prints a map of Leningrad indicating even hundreds of brigandages near the center of the city, and the picture of one of that type of outlaws known in France as a sporan describes the type, built in hand, Lenin's widow recently expressed alarm in an article in the French of the spread of brigandage throughout Russia.—From Le Figaro, Wednesday, Paris, (Translated for the Kansas City Star).

Events Around The Empire State

(By The Associated Press.)

Jay—"Honk! Honk!" in the city means "Jump for your life!" "Honk! Honk!" in the Adirondacks means "Jump for your gun!" When Sidney Cram of this village heard the signal overhead he knew that the wild geese were on their annual excursion to the southland. Hurrying into the house he got his rifle and fired into the flock. A fifteen pound bird from the wilds of Northern Canada dropped close to his nose. The meat of the wild geese is prized even above venison by the mountain people.

Ticonderoga—Stephen H. P. Pell, restorer of Fort Ticonderoga, has purchased from Frank P. Cooley of Rensselaer a sword taken from the fort when the work was captured by Ethan Allen and his Green Mountain Boys of the Revolution. The weapon had been given by Captain John Collier, one of Allen's soldiers, to his daughter, who in turn gave it to Mr. Cooley, a Civil War veteran. The old sword is now on exhibition at the Fort museum.

Utica—Old Trinity Church, Utica's first place of worship, is to be razed. Used by Episcopalians for nearly a century and a quarter, the wooden structure was abandoned by its parish four years ago when the congregation merged with the worshippers of St. Andrew's. A few weeks after Trinity had closed its doors the Italian Mission of St. Peter and Paul took the property, but the building was recently condemned as unsafe for occupancy and is to be taken down. Trinity was founded by the Rev. Philander C. Chase, who served as its rector from 1798 to 1893.

Albany—A gas bill, rendered May 1, 1907, has just been paid to the Municipal Gas Company by a conscience-stricken customer who took the debt of $5.64 with him when he moved from the state more than nineteen years ago. With the check and the bill was a note in which the delinquent said: "Finding this old bill reminds me that it has never been paid. Now that it is again before me I feel that, after all these years, you should have at least the $5.64. I shall feel better, as I do not make a practice of leaving debts unpaid."

Clintonville—Ben Wakes, who hails from the little Adirondack settlement called East Neighborhood, is telling one now. Ben had the nerve, the skill and the rare good luck to kill a Canadian lynx with a charge of bird shot. It happened this way: Wake's dog treed the big cat on Hogback Mountain in the Silver Lake country. When Ben saw the animal on a none-too-lucky limb his good judgment counseled retreat. But he knew that if he fled the lynx would follow and that his chance for the prize would be gone. So he opened his knife, held it in his teeth ready for the expected emergency, aimed and fired. As he pulled the trigger the big cat sprang, but the charge found its mark between the eyes and the lynx dropped to the ground dead. It weighed fifty-one pounds and was three feet nine inches long.

Albany—When No. 604, one of the big locomotives that hauls the Montreal Limited over the Delaware and Hudson lines, rolls out of the repair shop one of these days it will be a very much dressed-up engine. At present No. 604 is undergoing what is known as the "nickel plating treatment", a process that includes a dark green polish for the boiler, a high polish on all exposed brass work, and a nickel coating for other metal accessories, including the driving rods. Railroad officials are seeking to revive the old-time pride of engineers in their iron horses.

Mango in America

The mango has been cultivated to some extent in southern Florida and California. It has been said that some eight-year-old trees in Florida have borne as many as 5,000 fruits in a single season.

Pasteurized Milk Tests Reported

Health Board Makes Public First Tests Since Pasteurization Ordinance Went Into Effect in City—Grade A Raw Milk Also Meets Required Test.

The first reports of tests made of pasteurized milk sold in Kingston since the new milk ordinance went into effect earlier in the year were submitted to the board of health Tuesday evening by Miss B. Teacher Got Neatly

Out of "Hot Corner"

No person is forced to listen to more questions than a school teacher. From 8 o'clock till 8:30, five days a week, she is in a position to have queries hurled at her. And the instructor may not reply "I don't know," or "Honestly, I couldn't tell you," but must always come back with some sort of answer. Lost is the teacher who admits herself puzzled. The children will gather at recess and shrilly complain, "Aw, Miss Jones don't know nothing." I just asked her a simple question, and she couldn't even answer it."

But no person can be all-knowing, not even a school teacher, who must, nevertheless, avoid her pupils' scorn. Perhaps that is why they have become so skillful in evading unanswerable questions. There is a young normal school graduate who teaches up-town and who is especially proficient along this line. One day she told each member of her class to write a composition about his or her summer vacation of the previous year.

After a half-hour of quiet, broken only by the scratching of pencils and the dull monotone of certain students who always think out loud, one little chap raised his hand and timidly asked if the teacher would please inform him of the proper way to spell "Conshohocken." The "font of all knowledge" thought for a moment and then loudly replied as of one both indignant and angered: "All scholars must work out their own compositions without the aid of the teacher. If I were to tell you how to spell every word that is a bit difficult it would not be your composition, but mine. That would be just like cheating." And all the children in the class admire their teacher, who is as just and fair as she is intelligent. But she didn't know how to spell "Conshohocken."—Philadelphia Record.

GAS BUGGIES—A Proposition.

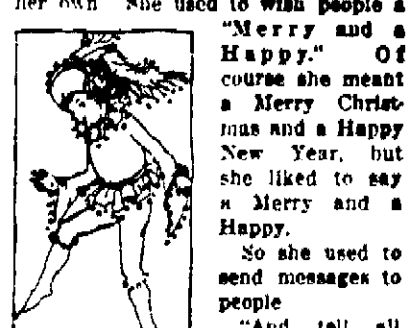

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MERRY AND HAPPY

Now little Mahalla had a way of her own. She used to wish people a Merry and a Happy.

Happy Looked So Young.

Merry and Happy for the first time. She had not known that they existed before. But she had spoken of them often enough. All day long she had been fixing the last of her presents. She had made pen wipers for many people. She had made them out of little odds and ends of cloth and in the centers she had put as pretty buttons as she could find in the old button bag.

She hoped everyone would know they were pen wipers. She was not sure that they would know but all she could do was to hope.

She had made candy bags, too, out of bright cheesecloth and had written little verses and messages on all her presents.

So she was very tired when she went to bed, but the minute that Merry and Happy appeared she knew she was not too tired to see them.

In fact it was surprising to her that she was not more surprised to see them.

Here she had never known they had existed and yet she was not so particularly amazed when two little creatures appeared before her saying: "We are Merry and Happy."

They looked something like brownies but they really didn't look so very much like any others than themselves.

Merry was dressed in red. He had a red suit which was edged with white. On his head was a red stocking cap with a white tassel on the end.

He had bright red cheeks and very blue eyes and a red mouth and he was just a little bit round in shape.

Happy was dressed all in white. He wore a suit of soft white with dazzling silver bells hanging from the sleeves and the wrists and the end of his white plumed hat.

There were silver hangings along the back of Happy's coat which looked like icicles.

Merry was older looking than Happy. Happy looked so young and fresh and new, but Merry was jolly looking, too.

"You see," said Merry, "we boys are just as busy as we can be at this time of the year."

"But you have such a little way of your own of always wishing people a Merry and a Happy that we thought we would come and call on you."

"You know how it is that the world must go whenever they are summoned by people. Well, at this time of the year the words Merry and Happy are used so often that there has to be some sort of organization so as to make sure that the supply will never run out."

"And it never will. We see to that. We are the ones in charge of those two words. I'm in charge of the Merry words."

"And I'm in charge of the Happy words," said Happy.

"Yes," continued Merry, "and we have the jolliest time for we love to be rushing about as fast as we can. Dear me, it would be as dull for the Merry and Happy families if so one wanted them around at this time as it would be if no one cared whether they received any presents or not."

"So you like us?"

"Oh, I think you're just too—well—merry and happy looking for anything," said Mahalla.

"Good," said the two companions. "And now we must be off."

Then Merry waved his cap and shouted, "Merry, Merry Christmas!" and Happy waved his hat and shouted, "Happy, Happy New Year."

Pull Their Wishes.

"Freddy," queried his small sister, "why can't children talk?"

"Oh, they don't have to talk," replied Freddy, who was glad of a chance to air his knowledge. "When they want anything they just pull their wishes and get their wish."

A Fish.

Make a marine animal with big mouth and open from a girl's toy and a fish's head.

Answer—Dolphin.

Sudden Experience.

Another rather discouraging and embarrassing experience is to look up a prominent friend of about your age or perhaps a year or two older in "Where War" and find his children years younger.

OFFICE CAT

A Tripe Merchant recently left a large fortune. There was evidently a keen demand for everything he wrote.

A girl sometimes goes wild over a wild youth, but if she marries him she goes much wilder.

Somebody once asked Cyrus Curtis why newspaper advertising paid, and he replied, "Because it does."

Who can give a truer or better answer? If newspaper advertising did not pay, there would not be much of it. The test of all things is what they do.

Why is so much more money spent in newspaper advertising than in other forms? Because it pays better. Why does it pay better? Because it does—and that's enough reason to hold anybody for quite a spell.

Our simile for the day: As long as a grandmother when the children's visit is over.

The common cold, like the weather, is discussed a great deal but nothing is ever done about it.

Little Girl: "You the 'stallion man'?"

Collector: "Yes."

Little Girl: "Well, Mom sent me to stall you off again."

Cold suppers cause empty husbands and full divorce court dockets.

"If she ever hung up her stockings," said one cat to another, "she couldn't even get a run in them."

She waited and waited all night, but she was just a waitress at Child's.

"Well, anyway," said the thrifty housewife, as she fed her husband a dog biscuit, "You can't claim that you aren't getting a square meal."

When a woman loses her head she often finds it on some one else's shoulder.

An argument never yet proved anything except that one is a dunce for taking part in it.

STONE RIDGE

Stone Ridge, Dec. 15.—The Rev. Cornelius Van Tol of the Reformed Church is preaching a series of sermons on the windows of the church. He has already preached on "Christ the Good Shepherd," "The Angel Pointing us to God," "The Bible," dividing the last subject into two parts, the Old Testament and the New Testament. The subject Sunday, December 19, will be "The New Testament," December 26, "Christ Knocking at the Door," January 2, "The Angel of Hope," January 9, "The Insignia of the Reformed Church."

Monday evening, December 20, will be the Christmas celebration at Stone Ridge Grange. Every one is asked to bring a small gift to exchange with some one else. The refreshment committee, Oscar Hornbeck, Robert Service and L. D. Sahler, is promising something good in the refreshment line.

Mrs. Mary Keator of Tilleon is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Charles Sherman.

Marion East, who has been ill, is improving.

UNION CENTER.

Union Center, Dec. 15.—The communion service, which was postponed on account of bad weather, will be held on Sunday evening, December 19.

The pupils of the Sunday school are rehearsing for their Christmas entertainment which will be held on Thursday evening, December 23. All are invited to attend.

The chapel has been greatly improved in appearance by new electric lights. It has also been newly painted and papered. Every one attending the services held is assured of a welcome.

Scheduled to Be a Bridegroom

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

(Copyright)
"IF WISHES did really turn to horses, I know I'd be riding every day." Roxy complained.
"Midge—what d'ye reckon makes things run so contrary? Look at us! Wantin' everything, got next to nothin'. And Evelyn Dorr that has got everything anybody can want, all set to marry a nice rich husband."
"Would you swap places with her?" Midge asked, a twisted smile curling her lips.
"What can her bridegroom see in her?" Roxy questioned. "So far—only a fortune. D'ye know he's to see her for the first time an hour before he marries her?"
"No! It can't be that way! Who told you?" Roxy cried breathlessly.
"Nobody—I just heard," Midge said. "Couldn't help it. I was out on the back porch early this mornin' when here comes Judge Jacks hot-foot, wantin' Daddy. I hunted him up—and they went in the garden—he told dad the Dorr wanted to hire him to come afternoons until the weddin' day—seems daddy's the only thing wearin' trousers she ain't morally 'fraid of. And daddy's to holler break Evelyn against the bridegroom's comin'."
"I understand," Roxy nodded. "He christened her, buried her twin that had a glimmer of sense, and saved her from school—made them get a governor instead."
"Yet—he's always talkin' about his conscience," Midge interrupted, "and is helpin' this poor stranger to his ruin. I'll say for him, though, he's rare right up first off—but old Jacks pulled the weep-stop—sayin' it was a husband or sentence to life imprisonment in a sanitarium—and that would just crush the family."
Roxy nodded energetically. "In that case," she said, "I've got to save him from himself."

Exactly thirteen days later, the Reverend Kenneth Luton faced in his shabby study, an upsetting presence—something tall, muscular, well-knit, with a determined chin, and eyebrows inclined to meet over very deep eyes. To be exact, Royal Quinton, Esq., Evelyn Dorr's predestined bridegroom, in spite of his outward calm, was tremulous inside. For two reasons—a letter resting in his breast pocket—and the glimpse of a girl's face peering at him through a tangle of roses.
Without preface he began: "I have come, sir, to ask truth absolute—between gentlemen," Quinton flung out. "I am told you know it—you alone. It concerns the girl I am due to marry tomorrow morning. You know her intimately?"

Luton nodded. "From her cradle up," he said. "I begin to guess your desire—explanation, if there is one, of why, though the match was arranged at her birth, you have not been permitted to see her since childhood."

This time Quinton nodded, saying through dry lips: "She was just six—and ran away from me screaming to hide behind her mother."

"You know—the worst I could tell you," Luton interrupted. "Evelyn is still abnormally shy—due, I think, to the sheltering love, the untwisted pampering which is all she had known."

"Would you let your son marry her?" Quinton broke in.
Luton smiled tolerantly, answering: "No need to make up my mind over a mythical son. Marry Evelyn, be tender, true and infinitely patient—and happiness is your sure reward."

"Doubtless you are to officiate," Quinton said dully.
Luton shook his head. "I shall not even assist," he said. "Only the bishop fits with the Dorr consciousness—but I shall be on the sidelines—if you need support."

"I shall need it—God help me," was Quinton's thought. But he made conventional remarks and rushed to his car, in which he drove furiously until black dark, tormented with devil of doubt. The letter had run: "Before it is too late demand the truth, from the only one who knows it—my father. I write this because of my conscience—to save you from life-long misery, and him from a crushing remorse." It was signed Roxy Luton.

Dorr pride could not waste a bishop upon any mere handful. Evelyn was too delicate to risk a church ceremony—but at home, with only familiar things about, she wouldn't mind. Besides, she was so taken up with wedding fever—the jeweled brocade gown, the veil of priceless lace used by great grandmothers, she had no thought of the groom. A brave show, the bride on her father's arm, sweeping down the winding stair, the flowers, the music, the blotches of kindly faces—no great crowd, of course, but enough for a background. Roxy and Midge were in the farthest ranks.

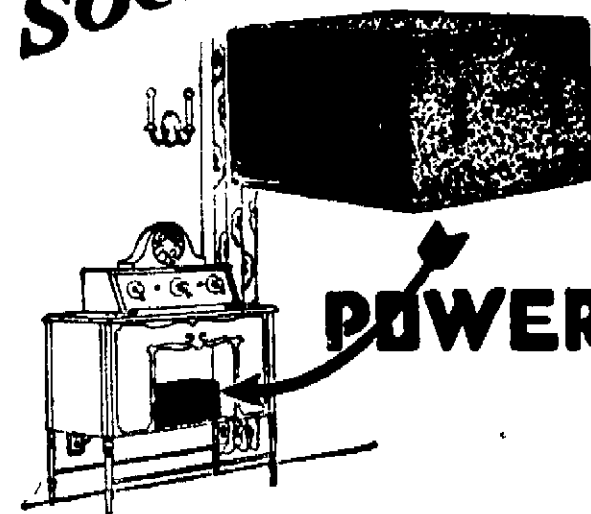

"After all—I'm glad he didn't mind," Midge whispered. "But our parent must have taken liberties with the truth."

Roxy's hand brushed her imperially. Suddenly at rest, Evelyn lifted her eyes—they fell upon Quinton advancing hesitantly toward her. She began to shiver violently—but held stout till the bishop opened his book. Then with a wild shriek, she rushed to Luton, flung her arms about him—and swooned dead away upon his breast.

Of course it was Roxy when Quinton married a year later. They do not speak of Evelyn, strictly avoided one and richly content. For once her mother came, bringing along Mr. Luton—whose residence is still so acute it made him sore doing faithful penance.

SIX-FOOT GORILLA LIKE HUMAN BEING

Killing by Hunter Almost Seemed Murder.

After thrilling adventures and hair-breadth escapes in the heart of Africa, Ben Burbridge, noted American big game hunter, has furnished to scientists the first real opportunity to study the mentality of the gorilla—the beast which, both structurally and in reasoning powers, resembles man most closely. Mr. Burbridge, in his two latest expeditions to Africa, not only obtained the only motion pictures of the gorilla ever made in its native haunts, but captured more live gorillas than have ever fallen prey to any other naturalist, eight in all. He succeeded in bringing three back to Europe and America alive, one of which, Miss Congo, a female about six years old, has lived and thrived since the fall of 1925 in Florida. She is the only living gorilla today outside of the African forests.

Horlick's Original Malted Milk. Safe Milk and Food. For Infants, Invalids, The Aged. Nourishing—Digestible—No Cooking. The Home Food-Drink for All Ages.

Some of the experiences in capturing these remarkable man-beasts with the aid of pygmy warriors are related by Mr. Burbridge to Frank Parker Stockbridge in Popular Science Monthly.

"What I was after was live, young gorillas," he says. "Our method was to watch for a family of gorillas passing through the forest, the old male leading and the young ones straggling along behind, and to pick up the straggling infants."

"One day we caught two young gorillas in this way. We thought the rest had gone on and had begun our march campward, when I heard the roar of a gorilla when heard the first time. It is the roar of a lion in volume, but has a more threatening tone. It is punctuated, moreover, by the beating of the beast's arms against his chest, producing a booming, echo noise like a big drum."

"The cracking of the underbrush told me that the whole band was after us. Hearing them, the young gorillas we had caught began to squeal, just as I was assembling my motion picture camera in the hope of getting a sensational strip of film. I had three natives with me this time. To one, the gun bearer, I turned over the crank of the camera with instructions to keep turning until I told him to stop. Flanked by the other two, each carrying a squirming gorilla infant, I advanced toward the place where the shaking of the shrubbery and the roaring of the beasts told me the band was assembled. The racket finally became so threatening that my two natives bolted with the captives. And that, it seemed, was what the old man's gorilla had been waiting for. I was alone."

"He crushed toward me through the underbrush, a huge, hairy, towering bulk, walking erect, almost like a man, with his great arms hanging to his knees. I fired once. He was so close that I could not miss. He fell dead, almost at my feet, and the rest of his family fled into the forest."

"As he lay there I measured him. Six feet tall he had stood in his life. His foot was 12 inches long; his fist when closed would have filled a gallon measure. I estimated his weight at 450 pounds. His muscles stood out in great knots, indicating his tremendous strength. He seemed so human, like some prehistoric ancestor of our own race, that if I had gone into the gorilla country for the sport of killing them I believe I would have abandoned my expedition then and there."

Thoughts of Worth Call for Expression

These two forms of silence—the silence of communion and the silence of repression—spring from beautiful and sterling foundations. But in themselves they are incomplete, and individual lives, though enriched, are never fulfilled through them. Mysticism and martyrdom must be related to living issues through expression, or they degenerate the one into introspective solitude, the other into narrowness of judgment, says a writer in the North American. Lives become sterile which might have been rich, had experience been translated into utterance.

The ministrations of words is indeed a blessed ministry. Because there are so many idle words, so many harmful words, so many insincere and bitter and malicious ones we must not stumble into the mistake of believing that silence of itself has golden merit. There is the silence of indifference or self-consciousness, of carelessness or weariness; there is the lazy silence, the silence which grows from a sense of futility, or from contempt and pride. Silence, no less than inaction, may be a form of selfishness. As the laws of harmony exist without music, so may all that is fundamentally beautiful in human life exist without words.

Plucky but Not Lucky

Will H. Hays said in an after-dinner speech in New York: "It takes pluck to succeed in the movies—luck and pluck, but mostly pluck."

"A Nola Chucky girl won the Nola Chucky $250 beauty prize and set off with it for Hollywood. She expected to eclipse Gloria Swanson, Mae Murray and all the rest."

Era of Expletives

Everybody seems excited these days; people write letters in italics; voices sweet and low have become obsolete; nothing any longer is either good or bad, everything is damn good or damn bad. And the less vocabulary people have to use, the more they use it.—William Lyon Phelps in Scribner's Magazine.

Another Viewpoint

But Cotte, investigator for the state securities commission, gave a lot of emphasis out of telling this story, which he says is true in every detail. Cotte goes so far as to say that he witnessed the incident.

It appears that a man was arrested and charged before a justice of the peace in Cotte's home county on a charge of "boating up" another man, as Cotte puts it. The defendant had his case prepared. Cotte said, and the trial indicated that he had not been proved guilty. At the close of the trial, Cotte said, the justice said:

"The evidence tends to show that the defendant is not guilty, but the court knows differently—see it and come."—Independent Times.

Cabbage Crop Slightly Larger

New York Has Become Largest Cabbage Shipping Section—Light Crop of Domestic Makes Better Market For Later Crop.

The production of cabbage this year in the late or northern cabbage producing states, including both the domestic and Danish types, is slightly greater than that produced in 1925, according to the state-federal crop report just issued from the New York State Department of Farms and Markets.

From a few heads grown in the vegetable garden to supply a green vegetable through the late summer and far into the winter, the production of cabbage has grown until, at the present time, it is the most important of the so-called greens or leaf crops. Cabbage can now be obtained throughout the entire year but through all of the late fall and early winter months the source of supply comes from those northern states where the plants can be set in the spring or early summer, the crop harvested in the early fall and either marketed at once or stored in pits, cellars or unheated storehouses. Of these states, New York contributes somewhat more than one-half of the shipments from storage. The largest cabbage shipping section in the United States, early or late, is that of western and central New York. Here the cabbage is divided largely into two groups, the Early, Domestic or Flat Dutch type used for consumption soon after harvest or for kraut, and the late or Danish type, the only type stored to any great extent.

Southern Crop Later Than Usual. At this season of the year, the most of the flat cabbage has been disposed of and the Danish cabbage which was not sold directly from the fields is in storage. This storage cabbage meets little serious competition with the southern crop until later in the winter. In a light way, shipments usually start in late December from Texas and Florida and increase through January, February and March, becoming heavy in April. This year, the southern crop is a little later than usual and shipments are expected to be light through both December and January but heavy in February and March with larger than usual shipments during April. The acreage in both Texas and Florida is about the same as last year or 21,000 acres compared with 20,450 acres and the crop is looking well at the present time.

The crop of domestic cabbage which has now been largely disposed of, was smaller than in either 1924 or 1925, both in New York and in the United States. A good yield of domestic cabbage was obtained but the acreage was smaller than in either of the other years.

New York Increases Danish Variety. When the Danish cabbage is considered, a different proposition is found. The New York state acreage of Danish cabbage was increased over that of 1924 and 1925 and the yield per acre was slightly greater than in either of the other years so that the crop is now estimated at 204,300 tons compared with 153,300 tons in 1925 and 170,200 tons in 1924. Wisconsin, the second most important state in the growing of Danish cabbage, has a crop of practically the same size as in 1924 and 1925, or 77,300 tons two years ago, 76,600 tons one year ago and 78,700 tons this year. The combined United States crop of Danish cabbage is now estimated to be 332,400 tons compared with 271,600 tons in 1925 and 310,500 tons in 1924.

Better Market For Later Crop. A light crop of domestic cabbage tends to make a better market for the later crop and this appears to be the case this year. To date the market for Danish cabbage has been relatively strong. Another factor which tends to make the demand for cabbage stronger is the average wage being paid in large industrial centers since it is at these points where much cabbage is consumed when the laborers have enough money to purchase green vegetables during the winter. The general wage level is now higher than during the World War or at any time since or, in other words, it is 2.31 times higher than in June, 1914.

More Cabbage In Storage. The total crop of both domestic and Danish cabbage in the United States is estimated at 576,200 tons. In 1925 a crop of 554,300 tons was harvested and in 1924 a crop of 639,600 tons. Carlot shipments of cabbage from the northern cabbage growing states to December 4 were practically the same as in 1925 although they have been somewhat lighter from New York. On November 1, it was estimated that there were about 40,000 tons more of cabbage in storage in the United States than on November 1, 1925.

Mr. Neal, who is a brother of Mrs. J. Elvey, came to keep the house while she and Mr. Elvey were in St. Petersburg, Fla., for the winter. Mrs. Neal came with him and they arrived just ahead of the flood. On account of back trouble she is somewhat an invalid. She had to be carried out when the water came through and is still confined to her bed due to the effects of a cold she caught. The coughing aggravated her back trouble.

The M. E. Aid held a clam chowder supper Tuesday evening at the church rooms.

The Macabees held a movie Saturday evening at the Chichester Hall for the benefit of the lodge. Harriet Loomis played for the picture.

The day school will have a tree and give candy to the children after a program which will be given Friday afternoon, December 24.

Mrs. H. Segelton has a bronchial cold.

The Baptist Aid gave a fair at Chichester Hall Friday evening. A large number attended. It was a financial success. A splendid line of articles were on sale from tastefully arranged booths. Ice cream, cake, and delicious edibles were for sale. The candy booth did a splendid business. A tree stood in the center of the hall. It was well laden with gifts. A two-reel movie was given. The music was from a victrola which was run by electricity. All enjoyed the evening.

The M. E. Sunday school will hold a Christmas service in the church. A program will be given after which the children will be given presents and candy from the tree. Mrs. H. Breithaupt has charge of the music and Mrs. A. Perry Loomis has charge of the program.

The plaintive cry of a cat was heard by Harriet Loomis recently and the sound came from the wooded slope in the rear of her home. The snow was exceedingly deep in that section and it was necessary to do considerable shoveling in order to reach the situation from where the cry came. Harriet Loomis found a kitten in a steel trap set by a hunter and released the animal. She took it to her home and fed it for it was on the verge of starving, having been in the trap for a considerable time. Many who witnessed the fate of the little creature expressed their opinion that all trappers should visit their traps at least once every day in order to prevent the prey from suffering.

The condition of Mrs. C. Neice is improving and she is able to be about the house.

The M. E. Aid Society will present a movie show in the Chichester Hall on January 22.

A cement wall is being constructed along the Bushkill creek where the old wall was destroyed by the flood. The line and angle of the new wall is different from the old one and it is contended that the change will be advantageous should another high water period occur.

Mrs. William McGrath and mother, Mrs. Altheimer, have returned from New York city.

Mr. Grant's condition is about the same.

Mr. Gaede and family are living in the D. Lord house for the winter.

H. Breithaupt and family expect to go to Miami for the rest of the winter after the holidays.

Jefferson Bible One of Nation's Treasures

The so-called Jefferson Bible is a compilation made by Thomas Jefferson, consisting of passages from the four Gospels cut out and pasted in a volume according to a scheme of his own. He began the work about 1804, during his Presidency, when he bought two English Testaments and compiled a work of 46 pages. Two evenings were spent at this interesting task, at the conclusion of which the President remarked: "A more precious morsel of ethics was never seen."

He intended this first abridgment for the use of the Indians. From a letter which he wrote to a friend it is learned that he was in the habit of reading from the volume every night before going to bed. About 1819 Jefferson completed the work by doing the same thing with Testaments in Greek, Latin and French. He entitled the work, "The Life and Morals of Jesus of Nazareth." The book contains no notes except the section of the Roman law under which Jesus was supposed to have been brought to trial. The list of passages, the title pages and the references to passages are in the handwriting of Jefferson. Two maps, one of Palestine and another of the ancient world, are pasted in front. The original work is in the National Museum, Washington.—Pathfinder Magazine.

CLEAN UP LICE ON FARM STOCK

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

The desirability of cleaning up lice on farm animals before cold weather sets in is pointed out by specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture. Lice on horses, cattle, and other farm animals are most troublesome in winter, but at that time treatment is very difficult.

In northern parts of the country winter weather is usually too cold for safe dipping or spraying, the two most effective methods of treating animals for lice. During cold weather dusting powders are of some value in helping to hold parasites in check, but they are not recommended as dependable remedies. Consequently, the best time for freeing live stock of lice is during the mild fall months. The effect of lice, both the biting and sucking kinds, is to annoy the animals, thus interfering with their feeding, rest and comfort, and there is also some loss of blood from sucking lice. For horses and cattle arsenic dips, coal-tar creosote dips, and nicotine solutions are recommended. For dipping hogs crude-petroleum and coal-tar-creosote dips are effective remedies.

An important precaution to take is to be sure that all animals in a herd are treated. If only part of the herd is treated, the parasites may spread, by contact, from one animal to another, and the entire herd almost certainly will become reinfested.

Farmers' bulletins on the subject give further details with directions for preparing and using the dips. The following may be obtained on application to the department: Farmers' Bulletin, 1493-F, "Lice, Mange and Ticks of Horses and Methods of Control and Eradication;" 909-F, "Cattle Lice and How to Eradicate Them;" and 1065-F, "Hog Lice and Hog Mange."

Feeding Baby Bees Is

Best Farm Money Maker

James Ellsworth of Rock county, Minn., whose carload of baby bees weighed the most and won first money in the Minnesota baby bee contest, first of its kind in the United States, fed nothing but home-grown feeds up to the last two months. For these two flourishing months he added three-fourths of a pound of oilmeal to the daily ration of each calf.

After raising beef cattle for 20 years Mr. Ellsworth, who began feeding baby bees six years ago, says: "Baby bee feeding is the biggest money maker on the farm, in my opinion."

All the feeders near the top used bulls of either the medium or big type, says A. A. Dowell, live stock specialist at University farm, who had charge of the contest. The cows were also classed as medium to big. The heavy calves from the good-sized sire and dam produced the most profit. Given a calf that is "bred big," as one of the feeders expressed it, and properly feed it and you will have a winner, is a conclusion drawn from the results of this contest.

Maintain Soil Fertility

The maintenance of soil fertility is greatly aided through live stock. The manure resulting from the feeding of farm crops on the farm is often able to increase the yield of crops to where the total effect of having live stock on the farm is reflected in the returns from other parts of the farm business as well. The increase, then, in the farm income due to the feeding of cattle is added to each year. This is done through feeding roughages, utilizing labor and buildings and keeping up the soil fertility.

Live Stock Items

The stomach of the horse is small, so not too much roughage should be given.

The fall is the most convenient time to start a farm flock of sheep.

With corn at $1.00 per bushel, buttermilk is worth about 4 cents per gallon.

Give the unborn lamb a good start in life.

Pregnant ewes should be fed a variety ration during the winter months.

Arrange the quarters so good shelter can be furnished the ewes that lamb. If the flock is large, put the ewes in a separate pen when they are to lamb.

Horror, cows, sheep, and hogs, all like lucerne hay. And there's no reason why plenty of lucerne hay should not be produced for them.

Well-fed pigs should gain one pound a day from the time they are farrowed until they are eight months old.

Now is a good time to come to a conclusion about those ewes which produce an annual crop of fine pigs. This kind of ewe should be fattened and sold.

Eleanor Gunn On Fashions

THE TRAPPINGS OF VANITY MAY BE ACCOMMODATED IN THE FASHIONABLE PURSE, NOT LARGE, BUT SUFFICIENTLY POUCHED TO BE ROOMY.

Paris.—Just as one may find variety in the envelopes which carry our letters through the mail, so one may find variety in envelope purses. One smart antelope bag seen here, instead of opening with a flap which covers one entire side of the bag, opened straight across almost half way from top to bottom. The black antelope showed a very narrow red cording, and the lining was of red moiré. Directly in the center was a marcasite clasp, framed in red gillith. On the reverse side was a small strap to run one's fingers through, for while bags may still be envelope-shaped and flat, they are no longer hugged under one's arm, but are carried either in the hand or by passing the fingers through a strap.

An effective compromise between an envelope and a pouch had a self-covered frame, on which was a tonal bar clasp of crystal. There was also

Checked Velveteen Is Used for Chic Blouse

Black-and-white checked velveteen makes this winsome blouse. The skirt is made of black velveteen. An interesting row of tucks is across the back of the blouse. It promises to be a popular winter fashion.

Distinctive Points Feature Paris Modes

Each of the Paris collections of fall and winter styles exhibited has certain peculiar characteristics, knowledge of which enables the initiated to name at once the designer from whom the garment originates. Notes a Paris fashion writer in the New York Times.

For instance, the usual straight-line coat that forms the basis for most coat fashions this season becomes distinctively a Worth coat when an inverted plait for additional width centers the back from low waist to hem.

If constant example could force the modern freed woman back into long skirts and princess gowns, then Poiret would manage to do so, for these gowns are the feature of his collection. A princess gown in black velvet, fitted with many gores running smoothly from shoulder to flared skirt edge, has no other decoration than a large pagoda-shaped Chinese lantern embroidered on the side front in gold and red. A long tassel of gold hangs from the bottom of the lantern nearly to the skirt hem.

Poiret uses the military braid, so popular in the new collections, much more lavishly than any other designer. He prefers gold-and-silver braid rather than black and applies it in heavy scroll designs on many of his creations.

Jenny likes military braid in black and has been very successful with it. In a dress of navy blue georgette, with circular skirt cut in wide scallops half way to the hem, where a semi-transparent border of black braid, fingered together with an open stitch, begins.

Shirring is much used to join skirt to blouse.

Frocks in the misses' sizes are shown in designs that are original and smart, and reflect a very nice sense of fitness. Shirring is much used, especially as a manner of joining a skirt in the blouse. Plaits are introduced in paneled sections in one late model and wide box plaits at irregular intervals are shown in a chic one-piece frock of flat crepe. In this model a wide-shaped band curving to a point in the middle gives the lifted line so modish in women's dress this season.

The deep collar and neck frill are shown on the frocks of the softer materials and few models are shown minus a collar of some description.

There is evident in some of the more elaborate frocks a revival of the straight high neck line of the period gown, shown in an engaging model of lacquer ropé. In this the kertha of the crepe is formed in two folds across the bodice in front and ends in a deep V-shaped cape at the back.

A sash or girdle is worn with almost every frock of soft material of tulle, frills, or velvet, satin, crepe, and the like, drawn such about the hips, tied directly in front.

Picture Hat May Come Into Fashion Limelight

Dresses in heavy tulle and cloth for autumn wear and winter ensembles trimmed with fur are to be seen in the windows of dressmakers.

Straight tailor made rules again this year with velvet predominating as material used. The skirts are a little longer than in 1925.

An attempt is being made to bring back the picture hat, not quite as large and decorative as formerly, but still a picture hat. It is generally made of velvet or felt and is trimmed with feathers, flowers or ribbons. Small felt hats with draped and ribbon trimmed crowns are worn with tailor made. A felt hat, designers say, is at home with any dress.

"We call them the 'bread-and-butter' hats," one leading designer said recently. "Because truly they are the 'bread and butter' of the millinery trade."

DAYTIME COATS ARE OF STRIKING NOVELTY CLOTHS OR SPORTS FURS

WE ARE living in an era of spectacular cloaking. Never such has this age and generation witnessed as it is seeing now—and wearing. Spotted and striped and in fantastic and startling combination are our fur coats. As if to compete in furnishing thrills, our cloth and knitted top-coats add bold plaidings, jacquard patternings and bayadere effects in most vibrant colorings.

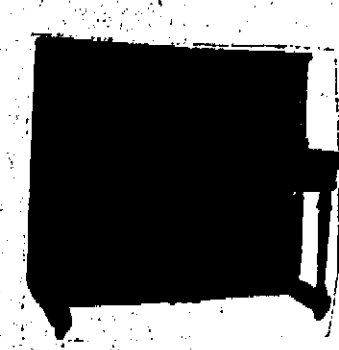

Perhaps the new slim, sleek suede or broadcloth black coats, which have so smartly and suddenly appeared upon the style horizon, serve by way of contrast to make the color of colorful coats look more colorful. Be that as it may, as fashion now is, the colorful cloth coat is intensely so, or else it isn't colorful at all but black through and through even to the fur which trims it and its silk lining. The two coats in the picture are typical of gay mode. Rivaling in point of novelty the leopard-spotted fur or the tiger striped coat is spotted calfskin. Its advent into style circles is nothing short of a sensation. The remarkable thing about calfskin is how fascinatingly it works up into not only coats, but hats, hand bags, belts and various accessories. It is an open question as to which is most effective, the black and white or the beige and white spotted calfskin.

Brown sheared lamb is another youthful looking fur which is popular for "flapper" coats. For trimming the newest pelt is badger, which is employed most lavishly.

A word to the WIVES—

For every pipe-smoker on your list

AT THIS season, when you are being urged on every hand to "Give this" and "Give that," be assured of this truth: Nothing you could give a pipe-smoker could make more of a hit than a generous supply of Prince Albert . . . mild, mellow, fragrant Prince Albert.

Here, for instance, is the crystal-glass humidifier, all dolled up in holiday clothes. It contains a full pound of P. A.—the grandest tobacco that ever fired the bowl of a pipe. There's a little sponge in the top of the humidifier to keep the tobacco "just right."

Every pipe-smoker on your list would be tickled to death to find this good-looking package among his gifts on Christmas morning. It will brighten the Big Day for him and furnish deep-down pipe-joy for the days that follow. The Prince Albert humidifier, by all means!

This prime favorite of experienced smokers also comes in pound and half-pound tins. As the nearest shop, you will find Prince Albert in sizes to suit every purse and purpose. If he smokes a pipe, your Christmas problem is settled . . . and settled satisfactorily.

P. A. is sold everywhere in 10¢ and 5¢ tins, pound and half-pound tin humidifiers, and pound crystal-glass humidifiers with sponge-maintainer top. And always with every bit of tin and pouch covered by the Prince Albert process.

Safeguard Flyers
Against Disaster

Army's Pan-American Flyers to Be Well Equipped With Safety Devices and Emergency Rations. But Their Own Ability Will Count for Much.

San Antonio, Dec. 15 (AP).—Parachutes, emergency rations and their own ability to carry off a bad situation are the principal safeguards against disaster that the Army's Pan-American flyers are carrying with them on their air voyage around South America.

Radios will not be carried on any of the planes, in order to make more room for gasoline, and the routes will not be protected with a chain of ships. When the flight leaves one town it will be on its own until it can reach its next stopping place. In case one of the planes is lost the remaining pilots will search for it, if conditions permit and boats will be sent to look for it as soon as possible. The pilot who is forced down upon the water will probably face a very disagreeable experience.

In the absence of radios Major Herbert A. Dargue will transmit all of his orders, while the flight is aloft, by means of rockets, hand signals, the maneuvers of his plane or craft. Special pistols containing colored rockets will be used for signaling.

Should the major's plane be forced down, Captain A. B. McDaniel, who flies just to the major's right in the V formation, will move up to the apex of the flight and take command. Seaworthy But Not Comfortable.

The planes are constructed with a view to carrying a maximum weight at a maximum speed, and while they are seaworthy and can stand a great deal of buffeting by the waves, they are not comfortable vehicles in the water during rough weather. They are short and stubby and the pilots should one be forced down, in rough water, would probably have to take a drenching before he could be rescued. High waves are likely to dampen the ignition and shut off the engine, in which case there is danger that the plane will lose headway and fall into the trough of the seas.

The lightest and perhaps most important piece of equipment which the flyers will carry is a tiny container filled with liquid food. The flyers will carry their meals with them on each hop, but the container of liquid food will not be opened unless the flyer is marooned on the sea, or the desert.

Beside the emergency ration each will be equipped with a special first aid kit made up especially for use in the tropics.

Expect Double Benefit.

Army air corps officials and diplomats of the state department expect this country to reap a double benefit from the Army's 18,524 mile aerial tour.

The visit of the ten army pilots to more than seventy cities and thirty geographical divisions is expected to cement closer the countries of the two Americas and at the same time it will offer a severe test of the amphibian plane.

The five planes will be called upon to make more than seventy hops in the good-will tour, which will last three months. They will cross the Andes mountains and will alight on inland and coast waters as well as on land. Every South American and Central American country, with the exception of British Honduras and possibly Ecuador will be visited and many stops will be made in the larger countries.

Add Two Countries.

Nicaragua and Ecuador were not listed in the original itinerary for the flight, but since it was published the state department has advised Major Herbert A. Dargue that a stop in Nicaragua would be advisable and arrangements probably will be made to stop at Guayaquil in Ecuador. This route forms a long loop from San Antonio to Washington, D. C., which officials hope will draw the American nations closer together.

The Loening Amphibian planes, which will make the flight, are ideally suited, army officials believe, for use in the island possessions of the United States and they expect that the Pan-American tour will offer an indication as to what could be expected of the planes in such service.

Unique Features of Planes.

A large central pontoon, which contains wheels that can be extended for alighting on land, are the most unique feature of the machine. So equipped they are able to go any place where there is a fair-sized body of water, or a plain large enough for a landing on earth. Each plane is equipped with V type inverted liberty motor and a three-bladed propeller. The single motor is expected to give much less mechanical trouble than would the twin motors used in many flying boats. At the same time it gives the plane a large cruising radius, since sufficient gasoline for almost 1,000 miles can be carried as well as 250 pounds of luggage or supplies.

CITIZENSHIP AND MOTHERHOOD SINGER'S GREATEST TRIUMPHS.

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink considers motherhood and American citizenship superior to the triumphs of 80 years on the operatic and concert stage.

The 65-year-old singer gave her views at a testimonial luncheon in her honor yesterday. She is midway on a "golden jubilee" tour of 20,000 miles.

"The greatest thing to me is not the honors I have received," she told the 1,000 men and women present. "It is that I am an American citizen and a mother. The happiest days of my life were the war days, when I sang for the soldier boys. The boys were wonderful. They sensed the mother in me, all of them looked upon me as sort of a foster-mother."

Five of Mme. Schumann-Heink's sons fought in the World War, four for the United States and one for Germany as a U-boat officer. He was killed when his boat sank.

The singer was praised as "the mother of seven and the grandmother of eleven," and toasted as "the woman with the golden voice and the golden heart," but she proclaimed herself "a good cook" and "not a society girl, but a hard worker."

Emperor Reported Improving.

Tokyo, Dec. 15 (AP).—The household department issued a bulletin this afternoon reporting improvement in the condition of Emperor Yoshihito, who is critically ill of pneumonia at Hayama. The bulletin said the Emperor's temperature was 87.5 pulse 98, and respiration 18. His temperature previously had been running above 100.

Births Exceed Deaths Here

There Were 47 Births and 34 Deaths in Kingston During November. Thirty Cases of Whooping Cough and Seven of Chickenpox Reported in City.

Auto Service at Kurenko Concert

At the Kurenko concert to be given at the High School auditorium, under the auspices of the Teller County Musical Association on Friday evening of this week, an entirely new, and much more satisfactory scheme of taking care of the auto service of those attending has been arranged. All autos—taxi included—are asked to drive in at the uptown entrance and all the way around the building to the downtown entrance of the High School, where the occupants will receive their auto numbers for their return after the concert. After the concert, all persons expecting to leave by auto are asked to go at once to the downtown entrance for their cars, as no autos will be allowed to stop at the front entrance which will be reserved especially for pedestrians or those making use of the trolley cars.

Women of Today Less Sentimental Than Men

Women are becoming the "sterner sex" of the race, while the male of the species is growing more and more sentimental, especially in the jury box.

This comment was provoked during one of the spirited impromptu discussions held daily and not scheduled on the program of the thirty-first annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Women's Clubs at Williamsport, Pa.

The question was asked, "Are women sentimental?"

"Fiddle! No," came the prompt reply. "Why, men are lots more sentimental than women."

Who deals out the punishment these days at home and in the courts? the clubwoman asked. Why, the mothers and the women jurors, they replied.

"Men are just as sentimental as women, only they show it in different ways," opined Mrs. H. O. Peckham of the Philomathean club, in Philadelphia, and chairman of the program committee at the convention.

"Do you know, I believe men in the jury box are more sentimental than women, but they would never admit it in a thousand years," she added, dropping her voice to a confidential whisper. "I should think a guilty criminal would rather face a jury of men than one of women."

"It has always been bunk, any way, that women are the softer sex," she declared emphatically, warming into her subject. "Why, men are the softer sex. Honest, they won't even correct their children any more."

The other women nodded solemnly in agreement. They, too, had children and hair brushes and soft-hearted husbands, their nod implied.

"It seems to be the mother's job to punish the children nowadays," agreed Mrs. A. Haines Lippincott, Republican state committeewoman of Camden county and a delegate from the New Century club in Philadelphia.

"The big difference between women and men lies in the fact that when a criminal is brought to justice the men think only of the next election, while the women think of the next generation."—Baltimore Evening Sun.

The discussion about the origin of the word "carping" as used frequently in the expression, "carping critic," leads us to pick up an unused car for a moment. The word is not from the French, but from the fish, and is so called because the carp is scaly, dumb, sneaking and full of bones. In the human variety the bones are mostly above the ears. The carp is also of the sucker variety, and will steal your bait. It is considered of absolutely no value. When caught it will try and flip back in the water.—Wichita Eagle.

Household Hint
Furniture and polished floors will never shine if polish is applied with a soiled cloth.

Another Boxer Dies After Bout

Silken Panties Are Favored by Phelan

Chicago, Dec. 15 (AP).—Much Christmas shopping but very few purchases was the net result of the first day of the annual meeting of baseball magnates here. Many prices were asked and given on players' contracts and some of these bargains likely will be negotiated before the end of the gathering.

Between the bidding of players, the American League club owners decided to re-elect Commissioner K. M. Landis, and then get him to re-establish the advisory board, and the league's committee of three started today in search of Landis to talk over the situation. The National League at New York took similar action.

The American League committee consists of Colonel Jacob Ruppert of New York, E. S. Barnard of Cleveland and Phil Ball of St. Louis. Ball is known as a strong partisan of President Ben Johnson of the league, and differences with Johnson caused Landis to ignore the advisory board for the last several years.

The five new managers in the league made the player market unusually brisk, with St. Louis in receipt of the most offers, and Ray Schalk of the White Sox well in the lead in bids.

Schalk talked trade for McManus of St. Louis, Ward of New York, Peckinpaugh of Washington, O'Rourke of Detroit, and several other infielders who might be able to fill Eddie Collins' vacant shoes.

Detroit offered three players for McManus, and Bucky Harris of Washington offered to take over some of St. Louis' surplus catchers.

Can a runner whip a skater at 60 yards? The question will be decided tonight at the Iceland rink in New York when Alan Helfrich, three times holder of the National A. A. U. half mile championship, matches strides with the flashing skates of Paul Forsman, holder of two sprint skating records. Helfrich, while not a sprinter, is extremely fast over the short distances.

The Boston Braves are not to get Bill Terry, slugging first baseman, in exchange for Joe Genewick, clever young pitcher, Manager McGraw of the Giants declares. "You'll have to add something before Terry goes," McGraw told Dave Bancroft, Boston pilot, at the National League meeting yesterday. Bancroft then switched his attack to Donie Bush, Pittsburgh manager, but Donie has 16 pitchers.

Sunday School League Results

Three games will be played in the Senior Sunday School League this evening on the Y. M. C. A. court. The first game will be between the Congregational and the Comforter teams. The second will be between Port Ewen and Clinton Avenue. The third will be between the Redeemer and the Presbyterian teams. The third game is expected to be the big game of the evening. Both teams are tied for first place and a battle royal is expected. A large crowd is expected to cheer their respective teams so that they may win and hold the league lead.

League standing of both Senior and Junior teams:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Clinton Avenue	2	0	1.000
Presbyterian	1	1	.500
Congregational	1	1	.500

Another Boxer Dies After Bout

Harry "Borg" Berglund Dies in Hospital Following His Bout With Carl Augustine—No Cause of Death Announced.

Minneapolis, Dec. 15 (AP).—Harry "Borg" Berglund, Minneapolis light-heavyweight boxer, who was knocked out in the last round of a scheduled six-round bout here last night, died at a hospital early today.

Berglund was knocked down 15 seconds before the scheduled end of his bout with Carl Augustine of St. Paul. His head struck the mat with considerable force. Early reports were that Berglund's skull was fractured, but the cause of death was not announced at the hospital. He did not regain consciousness from the time he was carried from the ring.

Although George Barton, the referee, said there was no doubt that the injury resulted from the fall rather than from the blow that sent him down, police at the ringside arrested the St. Paul boxer. No charge, however, has been made against him, pending action by the coroner.

Berglund, who was 21 years old, had been taking part in numerous fights as an amateur, but last night's fight was his first as a professional.

His death was the second in successive days to follow a boxing contest. Charles Pegulthian, French light-heavyweight, died at Hartford, Conn., after a bout with Elmer Friedman.

In last night's fight Berglund was knocked down in the first round, but recovered and as the fight progressed appeared the equal of Augustine. At times he was even more aggressive. Both men were blood spattered from the pummeling they received when they answered the bell for the sixth round. With the final bell only 15 seconds away, Augustine shot over a hard left which dropped the Minneapolis boy.

Sport Notes

For the self-educated man there are plenty of language courses, the most popular at this time being golf.

With Donie in charge, the Pirates might change their names to Bushmen, which is almost as sinister.

Professional football is said not to be drawing so well in several Eastern cities. It seems to lack overemphasis.

Notre Dame's gridders make more noise on the football field than three ordinary squads at any other school.

A university can always survive the loss of a president, but it's a terrible blow to lose a winning football coach.

It is estimated that if there were a United States of Europe the world series would open in the Balkans as usual.

Senorita d'Alvarez, Spain's famous woman tennis player, is reported to have refused the offer of an enormous sum to turn professional.

A grand opera star made $350,000 in four years, which is almost as much as a professional football player would make during the same period.

Cash-and-Carry Pyle, promoter of professional sport, is now negotiating for skaters. A favorite figure with old-time artists on the ice was the dollar sign.

It is a nice question how many of those who see their first football game of the season will ever discover that there has been a recent change in the rules.

Mr. Gene Tunney recently delivered a lecture to the youth of the country on "How to Live Right," but "How to Fight Right" was probably what they expected of him.

Association football is said to be making headway in northern Italy. In this connection it is supposed that wherever Mr. Mussolini sits would be the Maryland line.

The Pittsburgh Pirates have purchased Byron Speer, former Washington and Cleveland American league pitcher, from Indianapolis of the American association.

A high school football player, six feet four inches tall, was put out of a New England game for repeated tripping. One would suppose he would be above that sort of thing.

In this respect at least the modern open game of football is superior to the old: The boys devote more attention to the ball and less to plastic surgery of an informal nature.

Karl ("Garry") Neale, coach at West Virginia university and former Cleveland baseball player, has been signed to manage the Clarkstown Middle Atlantic league club next season.

Antwingers have put forward the claim that the stars were all rooting for Tunney to win. Funny. Very funny. If antwingers were so certain, why didn't they have money on Tunney?

Limiting football practice to two hours a day aided rather than retarded the progress of the Northwestern university football team this fall, according to Coach Glenn Thibault.

Silken Panties Are Favored by Phelan

Jimmy Phelan, former coach at Missouri, now doing a mighty good job of football coaching at Purdue, is the inventor of the new football panties of silk that have been worn by Purdue players in their last two games and used by the Notre Dame players against Northwestern recently. These silk "molesters" are made of a very heavy grade of silk material with a cotton back. They have a rubber foam hip pad with three small pieces of fiber over the hip bone. They are made without knee pads and are equipped with a pocket in which may be placed the regulation thigh guard. This new creation is said to be by far the lightest and the most comfortable football pant ever turned out. They weigh 28 ounces as against the four and three-fourths pounds weight for the regular so-called Notre Dame pants. They are turned out in any color, so no one need be surprised some day to see the football athletes dashing onto the field for the big game garbed in silken clothes of their college colors.

Canadian National Game Now Recognized as Golf

Golf has become the national game of Canada. More than $27,940,000 is invested in land and clubhouses and the Dominion has more golf courses in proportion to population than the United States, according to figures compiled by the Department of the Interior.

"Ontario leads the Dominion in every 19,593 people," says a bulletin of the department, "while the United States has one for every 25,796 people. There are 464 golf courses in the Dominion representing an average estimated investment of $60,000 each. The United States has 4,536 golf courses representing an outlay of approximately $274,100,000 in land and equipment."

"Ontario leads the Dominion in golf courses with a total of 160. Quebec has 70. Golf has grown in popularity in western Canada with the rapid increase in population due to the influx of land settlers. More new golf courses will be laid out this year than ever before."

Test Grass for Golf

To render service to the great army of golfers in the United States the Department of Agriculture is carrying on a series of experiments and tests to discover the best variety of grass for golfing greens. In this photograph Secretary of Agriculture Jardine—himself a golfer—is shown discussing the problem with E. C. Butterfield, superintendent of the Arlington experimental farm.

Great Britain Accepts Challenge to Checkers

The challenge issued by the United States to Great Britain for an international checkers contest in 1927 has been accepted. For the contest, which will take place in New York city from March 1 to 16, Great Britain will be represented by six Englishmen and six Scotsmen.

The English representatives will be R. T. Ward of Birmingham, champion of Great Britain; S. Cohen, champion of England; J. Alexander of Birmingham; John Hynd of Manchester, and H. Christie of Sunderland, all ex-champions of England, and F. Kaiser of London, ex-London champion. Messrs. T. Goldsboro of Bradford. The Scotch team has not yet been chosen.

Signal Honor Is Carried With a Yale Captaincy

A Yale captaincy in a major sport carries with it a signal honor—the right to be photographed standing against the old wooden fence. Although the fence disappeared many years ago, captains of today still are "phot" in the characteristic pose.

In each photograph of the leaders of old Yale teams the grass in front of the fence is always the same: It is never cut and no lawn mower was ever run over it.

The reason is that the area around the fence is a photograph gallery where there is a section of the genuine old Yale wooden fence. A photographer's net to represent grass is placed on the fence.

You'll Find It

To get acquainted with Lucky Strikes is to discover a new charm in cigarettes, an extra goodness.

You'll realize at once that in addition to their being made of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, there's something more which gives them their unique superiority.

This "something more" is the costly, added process of toasting. It makes Lucky Strikes better in three ways:

1. Finer Flavor. Toasting for 45 minutes develops the hidden flavors of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos.
2. Smoothness. Toasting for 45 minutes removes all "bite" and harshness, hence never any throat irritation.
3. Freshness. Then the tobacco is suddenly chilled. This seals the flavor in and insures constant freshness.

The added process of toasting brings extra goodness which accounts for the growing popularity of Luckies.

Niles Forms New Food Company

Designs From Everett & Treadwell Co. and Organizes T. & A. Sales and Manufacturing Co. to Make and Sell Food Products.

William H. Niles, for the past twenty-one years connected with the Everett & Treadwell Company, of which he has been secretary, has resigned from that company, the resignation to take effect January 1. Mr. Niles has organized the T. & A. Sales and Manufacturing Company, of which he is president, and will open a plant at No. 293 Foxhall avenue where the concern will manufacture mayonnaise, marmalade and table syrups.

For some time Mr. Niles has been interested in the manufacture of T. & A. Mayonnaise Dressing, which he will continue in connection with the production and sale of other food stuffs. The new concern is planning to manufacture a special mayonnaise for those who suffer from diabetes or are overweight. In addition to the regular table mayonnaise.

Charles W. Lewis, a former principal of the Kingston High School, is one of the directors of the new concern. Henry Battenfeldt of the Bors Grocery is also a director.

Borst Co. Buys Swart Grocery

The Borst Grocery Company, with stores on Foxhall avenue and Cedar street, has purchased the Swart grocery on St. James street and taken possession. While not yet stocked very well, the store is in operation. As soon as possible it will be renovated and modernized and a complete stock put in. The store will then be operated as a first-class grocery and will be in personal charge of Henry Battenfeldt, manager of the Borst grocery stores, of which there are now three.

FOUR TON ELEPHANT CAPTURED AT KINCAID.

Ottawa, Kan., Dec. 13 (P).—Filled with brass mashes and partly thawed out, Diamond, the four ton elephant which escaped from a circus near Quebec, was ambushed today at Kincaid, 24 miles away, where he was captured last night. Preparations were made to receive the animal at the National Guard armory, where steam heat was expected to restore him to health and prevent his catching pneumonia. Diamond spent last night chained to a tree near Kincaid, with a roar and a hiss about him, after circus men with the aid of two circus horses, had chained him.

The elephant began his travels Saturday, wrecking fences and small buildings during his week-end jaunt over four counties.

Kiwanians Hear Of Agriculture

Senator Capper of Kansas Tells Kiwanis Club That Agricultural Problem Is the Difference Between What a Farmer Sells and Buys.

New York, Dec. 13 (P).—The kernel of the whole agricultural problem is in the difference between the value of what a farmer sells and what he buys, Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas told the Kiwanis Club today. He said a farmer's dollar is worth about 85 cents, while the rest of us have a dollar with an exchange value of 100 cents.

"The increase of 500 per cent in farm mortgage indebtedness, the decrease of 25 per cent in farm values, and the continuing farm abandonment are commanding indications of America's serious farm problem," Senator Capper said. "Last year the producers received about $10,000,000 for the products of the farm. The consumers paid approximately $30,000,000 for these products. The spread between producer and consumer was entirely too great."

"The dealers, the distributors, the speculators, the commission merchants, the carriers, the toll takers in between, make more out of the products than the producers themselves. The problem of agriculture, therefore, is one of marketing, not of production."

Turning Defeat Into Victory
The young housewife stood in the middle of her kitchen, wringing her hands and giving voice to genuine distress. Before her on the snowy table stood a cake—a wreck of a cake—fallen in the middle and ragged and crumbly around the edges. The icing had been too thin and had refused to spread, dripping down over the sides of the cake and revealing here and there bare patches of slightly burned surface. It was a pathetic sight, that cake. It was one of those petty tragedies that we home women all experience at one time or another, and that fill us temporarily with despair.

"I wouldn't mind a bit if it were for home use," moaned the housewife, "but I promised to take it for the Vassar cake sale, and there isn't time to start another. I'm late as it is. What an awful looking thing! I can't take that mess up to Betty's. The girls would all certainly have the laugh on me. Yet I can't bear not to do my share."

She wiped her eyes and stood staring disconsolately at the cake. Prizes had been offered for the best cakes and she had hoped hers would be a winner. And just look at it! She looked and grieved. It was so utterly ruined that it was funny. Then she laughed aloud, for she suddenly had an idea for turning defeat to victory. She rushed to her desk, drew out one of her visiting cards and printed on the back, in clear letters:

"Singed Cat Cake: Better Than It Looks."

This sign she affixed to a long violet pin and stuck it upright in the corner, dragged cake.

"It does taste all right, I know that," she assured herself; "and it isn't as if the girls did not know I could bake wonderful cake—sometimes I'll take it along to show that I meant well and that I'm a good sport!"

The singed cat cake was the sensation of the sale, being greeted with shrieks of laughter, and winning—well, a consolation prize, anyway.

"A cake may be down, but it's never out," voted the judges amid the general hilarity.

GUN EXPERT TESTIFIES IN BALDWIN TRIAL

Ovid, N. Y., Dec. 13 (P).—Albert H. Hamilton of Auburn, criminologist and gun expert, occupied the witness stand during the morning session of the trial of Frank (Dixie) Baldwin, negro farm hand, for the murder of John W. Dickinson of Tyre.

The court room resembled a laboratory in an arsenal with numerous exhibits of guns, cartridges, targets and blueprints as Hamilton, under direct examination, gave evidence to show that the gun held by Baldwin was discharged while he held it in his hand, pointing upward, before he entered the Dickinson home. The prosecution attached his testimony, contending that the negro aimed the gun at Dickinson and fired in a downward direction. George F. Bodine, attorney for the prosecution, donated Dickinson's blood stained shirt in an effort to disprove Hamilton's contention.

Dairymen Will Talk Unification

Committee of Dairymen Said to Represent "Dirt Farmers" of New York City Milkshed, Will Hold Hearings to Discuss Plans for Unification.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 13 (P).—A committee of twelve dairymen, said to represent the "dirt farmers" of the New York city milkshed, decided here today to hold a series of hearings at which further plans for a unification of the industry in the interests of consumers and producers will be discussed.

The committee, appointed at Utica on October 27 when representatives of the five existing producers' organizations met to consider unification proposals, said that when a plan had been decided on, the dairymen hoped to present it to Owen D. Young and Charles E. Hughes, who would be asked to examine its features from the legal standpoint.

Invitations to attend the hearings, which will probably be held in this city, will be extended to the heads of all producers' and distributors' organizations, to state legislators, to representatives of the consumers and to individual producers. Peter G. Ten Eyck of Albany, chairman of the committee, said all plans presented would be considered "without prejudice."

Efforts to unify the dairymen of the milkshed, which includes New York state and parts of Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, have been in progress for the past year, but the various groups have been unable to agree on a plan.

Society Notes

College Club.
Mrs. Charles Arnold and Mrs. John Mac Kinnon entertained the members of the College Club on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Frederick E. W. Darrow, interior decorator, of Saugerties, read a paper on interior decorating and led an informal discussion on the subject.

Lowell Club.
On Tuesday afternoon the Lowell Club met at the home of Mrs. Harry Brigham. There were three papers, all of them excellent and interesting. Mrs. Conklin gave a sketch "Expulsion of the Moor and its Effect on Spain." A paper on "Spain under the Hapsburgs" was given by Miss Pettigill and Mrs. Schoonmaker gave a sketch of "Toledo, a City of Many Generations." Piano selections of Spanish music were given by Mrs. Childster and also by Mrs. Augustus Van Buren. Next Tuesday the Christmas meeting will be held at the home of Miss Fuller.

Birthday Surprise.
A pleasant surprise was tendered on Sunday, December 12, to Ebert Dederick at his home in Port Ewen in honor of his eighty-sixth birthday. He was most joyously surprised when a number of his relatives and friends came in autos to help him spend a pleasant afternoon and evening and whom he entertained with reminiscences of his younger days and with stories and jokes. Refreshments were served and health and happiness for at least fourteen years more so that he may reach the century mark were wished him. Those present were, Mrs. J. DuMont and daughters, Ha and Mrs. G. P. Myers; Mr. and Mrs. William Miller, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Schiller, Henry Dederick, Mr. and Mrs. G. Dederick and son Cortland, Mr. and Mrs. R. MacCartney, Mrs. A. Doyle, Mr. and Mrs. Fred DuBois, Mrs. J. DuBois and daughters, Jeanne and Marion, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Dederick.

Morse-Pangborn.
In the presence of immediate relatives and a few intimate friends, the marriage of Evelyn von Schlieder Pangborn, daughter of the Rev. Albert von Schlieder of Hackensack, N. J., to Dr. A. H. Morse of Yale Hospital, New Haven, Conn., took place at the Reformed Church, Old Hurley, Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by the father of the bride, a former pastor of the church. She was attended by her sister, Elizabeth von Schlieder. The best man was Professor Harvey of Yale College and Professor Anne of Yale was the usher. Before and after the service music was rendered by an instrumental trio of piano, violin and cello, the pianist being Prof. Frederick von Schlieder of New York, a brother of the Rev. Mr. von Schlieder and uncle of the bride. The church was lighted by candles and the decorations by Valentin Barberger, Inc., were of evergreens and holly. The newly married couple will make their home in New Haven, Conn.

Several Advantages of Plowing Orchard Early

"In orchards, where a winter cover crop is not grown," says W. A. Radabaugh, pomologist for the North Carolina state college department of horticulture, "the ground should be broken with a plow any time from fall to spring. The middle should be broken deep, but care should be taken not to disturb the roots of the trees."

"There are several advantages of plowing early, the most important of which are: It increases the aeration of the soil, allows organic matter to decay before spring, kills insects that are hibernating in the soil over winter, and clears the surface of rubbish. Cover crops turned under in the fall will decay in time to furnish fertility for spring growth of trees."

"Many orchards are plowed in the fall and not harrowed until spring. This method of fall plowing keeps the land from washing and also reduces the spring labor question, thereby checking the rush at that time of year. There is no added expense to fall plowing, as no extra harrowings or plowings are made, the work merely being transferred from spring to fall."

Top-Grafting Apples

The scheme for top grafting apples should be set in fall as soon as the wood is mature, and then kept over winter in cool storage where they will not dry out or start to grow. In spring the grafting should be done. As soon as cold weather is over and before the sap starts to flow, cut off the limbs to be grafted, split them in the middle a little ways and insert the graft, which has been cut to wedge shape, being sure that the cambium layer graft and stock are in contact.

Horticultural NEWS

FROSTED APPLES CAN BE TREATED

Last fall, at a packing house hundreds of boxes of apples were damaged and thrown in a great pile to be hauled away as fertilizer. Some of the fruit had frozen on the farms and some in transit. Annually large quantities of apples are frozen in transit or in storage.

Freezing has a great variety of effects, but in general it produces a condition which is quite similar to a disease of the fruit called "internal breakdown." Frozen apples turn brown inside, the brown color often extending to the surface of the fruit; besides, the affected tissues become watery and the conducting vessels show up prominently as dark brown strands. The affection may appear on any part of the apple, and on the small green one as well as on the overripe.

Apples will stand safely a temperature of thirty-two degrees Fahrenheit, but their limit is twenty-one degrees. Some are touched by frost at this temperature while others are not. Fruit that is only slightly frozen may be thawed out at a temperature of thirty-two degrees so that it will not show any injury, but the quality will never be as good as it was before the freezing. A housewife told me the other day that frozen apples can be thawed out in ice-cold water so that they will not lose any of their good qualities, but I have never tried this method, says a writer in an exchange. The fruit should be thawed out slowly at a temperature of thirty-two degrees, whether it is intended for home use or for the market. However, apples that have been badly frozen or that have had repeated light freezes will show frost injury no matter by what method they are thawed out.

The fruit is greatly damaged by any punctures or bruises made on it while it is in a frozen state, therefore, if frozen apples are to be saved, they must be handled carefully. The packages and boxes must be moved without throwing or bumping—almost as if their contents were eggs.

Mulching Strawberries Before Heaving Begins

Mulch the strawberry bed in order to prevent injury to the plants from heaving as a result of alternate freezing and thawing of the soil. Clean straw, salt hay, and coarse horse manure are the most desirable materials to use as a mulch, although corn stalks, crab-grass, leaves, and other coarse vegetable materials are sometimes used. The particular material used will depend largely on the cost and availability. Manure is generally more satisfactory than straw on light sandy soils, because of the plant food it contains. This factor is of less importance on heavier, richer soils where mulching rather than plant food is the important consideration.

Two or three tons of straw or five or six tons of straw manure an acre will make satisfactory mulch under average conditions. A uniform layer of the mulching material should be spread over the entire area so that it will form a mat not over two or three inches deep after settling. A thick mulch may smother the plants, the ideal amount being just enough to prevent alternate freezing and thawing of the ground. In using manure, work the fine material around the plants and between the rows and spread the straw portion over the plants. Materials containing objectionable weed seeds, or in fact viable seeds of any kind, should be avoided for mulching purposes.

Christmas Tree at Joyce-Schurick Post

Santa Claus and a Christmas tree will be the attractions for the children at the lodge rooms of the Joyce-Schurick Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, corner of Broadway and Broadway street on Thursday evening. There will also be an entertainment and presents for the youngsters. A delightful musical program has been arranged consisting of solos and instrumental numbers. John Rowland will render several pleasing solos and Harry G. Matzenheller will play a number of flute selections, accompanied by Miss Brynne McKinley on the piano. The program will start at 8 o'clock.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 13 (P).—Heavy profit-taking and bear selling temporarily checked the upward movement of prices in today's stock market, but all offerings were well absorbed and the market was headed upward again by early afternoon. A heavy return flow of funds previously withdrawn by interior banks for mid-month payments resulted in the lowering of the call money rate from 5 to 4 1/2 per cent, facilitating the operations of professional traders.

United States Steel resumed the leadership of the advance, by moving up nearly two points to 155, a new high on the current upswing and within five points of the record high established earlier in the year. The weekly steel trade reviews reported little change in mill operations, but stressed the promising outlook for further railroad buying.

Atlantic Reading soared nearly five points on buying influenced by expectations of an early resumption of dividends. Texas and Pacific Land Trust jumped 100 points on a few odd lot sales to a new record high at 1450. A number of other oils were under accumulation in anticipation of unusually favorable 1926 earnings statements. Strong spots also developed in the tobacco, shipping and public utility groups. Rails were quiet, but strong with Erie first preferred crossing 51 to the highest price in about ten years.

Mrs. Patrick Kane of Broadway is ill at the Benedictine Hospital in Kingston.

Esopus Council, No. 42, Sons and Daughters of Liberty, will meet this evening promptly at 7:30. A Christmas party will be held at 8:30. An exchange of gifts will be made. Refreshments served. Christmas tree and a jolly good time for all members of the order.

Mr. and Mrs. George Houghtaling of Tannersville, N. Y. spent Tuesday with Mr. Houghtaling's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Houghtaling on Salem street.

Mid-week prayer service in the Methodist Church, Thursday evening at 7:30. A rehearsal for the pageant that is to be given December 25, will be held promptly at 8 o'clock. All members that take part are urged to be present.

FORNIE KAISER IS CONFINED TO HIS BED

Doorn, Holland, Dec. 13 (P).—Former Kaiser William of Germany was confined to his bed today with what was described as an "influenza cold."

The ex-Kaiser three weeks ago suffered an attack of rheumatism following while tramping about the grounds of Doorn house, his place of exile, during wet weather. He was kept to his bed for several days, and his eldest son, former Crown Prince Frederick William, made the trip from Germany to visit him. The former Emperor will be sixty-eight on January 27.

Butler, Foe of Rum, Will Testify

San Francisco, Dec. 13 (P).—Brigadier-General Smedley D. Butler, distinguished foe of alcohol and prosecutor of the late Col. Alexander S. Williams in the "cocktail court martial" case, was among those listed to testify in defense of Colonel Ned M. Green in federal court here today.

Green is charged with embezzling confiscated liquor from government vaults while he was prohibition administrator for northern California and Nevada. The prosecution charges Green appropriated the liquor for consumption at riotous parties.

General Butler is expected to testify as to Colonel Green's character, with special reference to his sobriety.

Port Ewen Fire Dept. Officers

The annual meeting of the Port Ewen Fire Company was held Tuesday evening in their rooms. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Chief, Fred Spillinger; assistant chief, Earl Prosser; secretary, Howard Phillips; financial secretary, Donald Decker; treasurer, Wallace Mable; trustee for three years, David Skelton.

Chief's report was read as follows: "Our fire in the district reported, which the company responded to, and was extinguished with very little damage to the property."

One fire out of the district was reported to, but too late to save same.

The chief made a plea for an adequate water system for fire protection, as was pointed out, that the district has several very dangerous fire hazards, which was responded to by the fire commissioners present and agreed that it was a crying need of the district to have a system of water and also was believed by the company as a whole that if the proposition was intelligently presented to the taxpayers of the district that there would be no doubt of the success of the taxpayers. With this view in mind, the chief appointed a committee of the company, one commissioner and one taxpayer member to get in touch with the proper authorities and formulate a working plan to lay before the people of the district for the necessary steps to be taken to establish this village as one of the progressive communities along the Hudson river, a place it should hold in this Hudson river valley and a village that one may be proud to call their home.

American Legion Dance.
The American Legion dance will be held on Thursday evening, December 16, and all preparations for the event have been completed by the faithful committee and members of the Kingston Post. Malsenholder's orchestra will furnish the music for the dancing which will start at 8 o'clock and continue until 12. The hall has been artistically decorated for the occasion and the officials in charge promise a delightful time to all who attend. The public is cordially invited.

"Black Boy, how did you all get that coat on your coat?"
"That ain't coat, Carbons, that's a dress!"

French King First to Employ Sealing Wax

The first gummed envelopes were made in 1860 in England and three years later a machine was invented by Warren La Rue and Edwin Hill for folding and gumming the envelopes. Sealing-wax was not used until 1113, when Louis VI sponsored it in France. Before that all letters and documents were sealed with the impression of a ring in clay. This device was superseded by the use of a lump of pitch, wax and plaster. Yellow betanax was next used and was succeeded by sealing-wax mixed with other substances. This made a white, or nearly white, seal.

A century later red wax appeared and, some time after that, green. Billets-doux were next secured with yellow, brown, rose and blue wax. Black also was used at this period, but was mostly employed by the religious orders.

Wafers for seals were first used in Italy and were brought to France by French army officers, who thus were instrumental in introducing them to the rest of the world. The first wafers were cut from a thin sheet of dough, moistened and applied to the folded missive.

Tender Notes Burned by Mrs. Washington

After George Washington's death his widow burned every letter that she had received from him, with the exception of three or four that escaped apparently by accident.

No one has ever elucidated the motive behind this letter burning episode. Martha Washington knew at the time, indeed, the whole world knew, that George Washington was a star of the first magnitude in the field of history and that every scrap of his writing would be treasured and printed. Did she feel that his letters to her were so sacred in their intimacy that posterity had no right to read them?

But there are other tenable hypotheses. She was antedemocratic and antipathetic to an extreme degree. Considering her as surrounded by such limitations of perspective, one may readily conceive that her motive may have been simply one of aristocratic seclusion.

In destroying his letters she effectually effaced herself, for she lived only in his reflected light. But that may have been what she wanted. The highest form of pride is a disdainful humility.—The Nation.

Popular Russian Dish Elaborate and Tasty

Of Russia's many national dishes, Solyanika is perhaps the most popular. This is a much more elaborate preparation than Vienna schnitzel or Hungarian goulash. It is rich and pleasant without being unduly heavy or greasy, as are most Slav dishes. To make it the Russian housewife takes 2 pounds of cooked beef, veal, ham or chicken, either singly or in combination, 2 pounds of boiled cabbage, 1/2 teaspoonful flour, 1 onion, 2 pickles, 10 olives, 10 pickled mushrooms, a few truffles and 1/4 pound butter.

The onion and cabbage are chopped fine and fried in butter until soft. The meat is cut into thin slices. Then the cook butters a deep pudding dish, making it inch deep with alternate layers of meat and cooked cabbage. The top layer should be of cabbage, and on this is placed slices of pickled mushrooms, olives, truffles and pickles.

White sauce or brown beef sauce is then poured over all and the dish is baked in an oven for one hour and served hot in the same pudding dish, with a sprinkling of chopped parsley on top.

Cathedral's Fire Brigade

St. Paul's cathedral in London has its own private fire brigade and water service. The water service was installed shortly before the World war. Though the cathedral does not appear to the casual observer as being a building that would burn easily, being mostly of stone, there are hidden away in the thickness of its walls and elsewhere in its interior several hundred passages, corridors, rooms, staircases and cupboards composed largely of wood. The great outer dome, which is to be seen from the street, also is made of wood, encased with lead. Another reason for the fire brigade is the fact that most of the wood in the structure is many years old and unusually dry, making it excellent tinder in event a fire should start in the building.—London Tit-Bits.

Wisdom of Epictetus

You will confer the greatest benefits on your city, not by raising its roofs but by exalting its souls. For it is better that great souls should live in small habitations than that abject slaves should burrow in great houses.—Epictetus.

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Dec. 15 (AP).—Western New York barreled apples were in limited fresh receipt. Market values remained practically unchanged with demand confined to a fancy fruit. Grade A 2 1/2 inch Rhode Island Greenings, wholesaled at $3.50 @ $1.25 per barrel. Hudson river Baldwin of Grade A, 2 1/2 inch brought $2.50 @ $3.50. Lake Champlain A 2 1/2 inch McIntoshes of good quality realized $3 @ $10. On December 1, the cold storage holdings of apples throughout the entire country amounted to 4,348,000 barrels, 15,128,000 boxes and 2,718,000 baskets. On the same date, one year ago, holdings were 1,215,000 barrels, 13,041,000 boxes and 2,119,939 baskets.

Celery was in moderate receipt. Trading was fair on good quality stock, but very light on poor. Western New York golden self blanching in the rough jobbed out at $2.75 @ $2.50, occasionally as high as $2.75 per two-third crate on the best. Inferior ranged from $1 @ $1.75. California large crates commanded from $3.80 @ $6. The market held steady on state cut carrots, but was extremely dull on southern and western new crop bunched offerings. Most of the upstate stock changed hands at $1.50 per 100 pounds. California crates sold from $1.50 @ $3.50, and Texas baskets principally around $1.50. The potato situation was dull and weaker. Liberal supplies were available at most terminals and the demand generally limited. A large percentage of the business on Long Island bulk Green Mountains were reported sold at $5 per 180 pounds. Upstate round whites ranged from $1.50 @ $5. Bermuda No. 1 Bliss Triumphs peddled out at mostly $15 per barrel.

Supplies on onions were more plentiful, nevertheless the undertone of the market was steady on fancy. At the Barclay street pier, western New York hundred pound sacks of yellow onions brought from $1.50 @ $2.40, depending upon condition and quality. Orange county New York offerings sold through the stores of commission merchants from $1.75 @ $3.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

Pelham Manor, N. Y.—Since he thinks penologists and reformers have failed to solve the crime problem, a solution is offered by Brice P. Disque, silk manufacturer, former prison warden in Michigan and head of wartime spruce lumber camp for the government. All convicted criminals would have to work for a state corporation for wages equal to those paid in private industry. Their keep would be deducted; the rest would be held to compensate their victims.

Camden, N. J.—Women are now violating the laws to a greater extent than ever in history, in the opinion of Justice Frank Katzenbach of the state supreme court, but bobbed hair and short skirts are not to blame. One trouble is wealth, another is the same thing that caused Marc Anthony to spend $900,000, 000 "in his pitter, patter after the greatest vamp of all time—Cleopatra."

Toms River, N. J.—A woman is to figure largely in the administration of Jersey justice. Mrs. Laura W. Thompson is head of the Ocean county grand jury. In appointing her, Justice Lloyd said it was time for an innovation in the state.

New York—Barnard girls have been advised to paint the cheeks from the inside out—with tennis racquets, baseballs and fruit. The value of correct food and sport is being described in the college's annual health week.

Hartford, Conn.—Milady should thank chemists when she is all dolled up. She would have nothing to wear without them. Trinity College professors point out that chemistry figures in the production of shoes, furs, gloves, hose and other things made from artificial silk; perfume and jewels are produced synthetically.

Springfield, Ill.—Mrs. John Shutt of Chatham, champion hog caller of Sangamon county, is always tidy on the farm. She says women who are careless about their personal appearance are responsible for a whole lot of their divorce business.

Important Point It is a secret known but to few, yet of no small use in the conduct of life, that when you fall into a man's conversation, the first thing that you should consider is whether he has a greater inclination to hear you, or that you should hear him.—Steele.

OH, BOY! When it comes to fighting he makes Wild Bill Hickok look like a dove of peace.

Do you speak of Jagers and Wesseltons or just "diamonds"

If you know whether Jager diamonds are finer than Cape diamonds, Wesseltons finer than Premiers, if you can distinguish blue-white from yellow or light brown, if you judge the value of a diamond by its proportion of width to depth—it, in other words, you are a true connoisseur of diamonds, you do not need our help in your choice of these fine jewels.

But if you are not a connoisseur, you will want to be guided in your selection of diamond jewelry by men who have mastered these matters of color, proportion and value. You will feel secure only in a store whose men not only know all there is to know about the diamonds you choose, but who will tell you everything frankly while you choose.

Those people who are not connoisseurs come to see us for honest guidance in their selection of fine diamonds. And those people who are connoisseurs come to us for the fineness of the jewels themselves.

Throughout the many years of our business history we have earned and we now enjoy a reputation for selling merchandise of the highest character. Some people may confuse "HIGH QUALITY" with "HIGH PRICES" so we want to make it quite clear that Oppenheimer's is a "Store for Everybody"—for those who appreciate WORTH WHILE merchandise at reasonable prices.
